'My goodness, what a surprise.. So there really is an Easter rabbit.' 'Oh, oh, there he goes. But I'll catch you anyway, cute bunny.' 'Dear me, you're very quick. But I'm getting closer and closer.' 'There, I told you so. Now I've got you, little Easter bunny.' 'No use trying to get away. You're trapped like a rabbit in a basket.' 'Now that we're friends, I'll just sit and wait for a pretty colored egg.'

EASING OF CLOSED SHOP BAN HINTED

Boy Sees Truck Kill Sister, 4

Driver Fails To See Child

A horrified 10-year-old boy saw his young sister fatally injured when she was struck by a pick-up truck at about 9:20 a. m. Saturday.

Mary Anne Rathburn, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Rathburn, 258 Saxton road, died at General hospital at 1:05 p. m. yesterday of injuries received in the traffic accident.

Police said an autopsy revealed cause of death was a lacerated left lung.

The girl was hit by a truck driven by Charles L. Britton, 57, of 512 South Main street, as she was crossing Harter avenue at the intersection of Lexington avenue.

According to the police report, Mary Ann and her 10-year-old brother, Roger, had been in a grocery store at the corner of Harter and Lexington avenues.

As they left the store Roger waited for the red light, then crossed the street, thinking his sister was right behind him, police said.

Britton, who was traveling northwest on Harter avenue, had stopped for the red light at Lexington avenue. When the light turned green he continued across Lexington avenue.

Mary Ann, who had lagged behind her brother, evidently was immediately in front of the truck when the light changed.

Britton told police he did not see the girl or know he had hit her until he heard Roger scream to him to stop. He stopped immediately, got out of the truck and saw Carl Fischer, of 24 Chilton avenue, who was in a car behind Britton, picking up the child from the street.

Britton took the child to General hospital where she died.

Mass of the Angels will be said at St. Peter's Catholic church at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday, with Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

Mary Ann was born Dec. 6, 1944.

Survivors include two brothers, Roger and William, at home; her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Julia C. Rathburn, of Crestline, and the parents.

Friends may call at the family home after 4 p. m. Sunday. Arrangements are in charge of the Geiger funeral home.

Mary Ann's death marks the sixth traffic fatality in Richland county this year. Last year at this time there had been only three traffic fatalities.

Crowd Takes To Heels as Lion Escapes

TULSA, Okla. —(AP)— A 100-pound lion cub broke from zoo attendants yesterday and scattered a Saturday crowd all over Mohawk park.

He was captured a short time later.

The escape occurred as zoo director Hugh Davis was transferring the animal from his cage to a crate for shipment. The cub suddenly rolled over, clawed at Davis' trousers and leaped from a restraining net.

As the lion wheeled and dodged, frightened men, women and children scrambled madly for safety amid screams and yells.

City Host To Mayors

Mansfield will be host to two of Ohio's best-known mayors this week.

Mayor James A. Rhodes of Columbus and Mayor Thomas Burke of Cleveland will address members of the Mansfield Kiwanis and Rotary clubs and the Richland County Young Democratic club, respectively.

Mayor Rhodes will speak at a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs Thursday at 11:50 a. m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The capital city mayor has been described as the most sports-minded mayor in the country, and holds the presidency of several national, adult and youth sport organizations.

Mayor Burke will make his first appearance in Mansfield Tuesday at the annual Jefferson Day dinner of the Richland County Young Democratic club. The dinner will be held at the Richland Recreation center at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The mayor of Ohio's largest city has been mentioned frequently as the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, if Gov. Frank J. Lausche runs for the U. S. Senate in 1950.

Court Upholds New Rent Law

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — The 1949 federal rent control law was upheld in Minneapolis municipal court yesterday in a decision which Alex Dim, area rent attorney, said would set a pattern for action by federal rent control administrators throughout the nation.

The ruling, by Municipal Judge Theodore B. Knudson held, in brief, that Congress has authority to pass legislation, retroactive or otherwise, to protect tenants because the housing shortage came as a development of the war and that congress still holds widespread war emergency authority.

Peace Is Key Word As Nations Honor Christ

NEW YORK—The echoes of the word "peace" were heard around the world this morning as Christians everywhere paused in their usual routine to pay homage to the resurrection of Christ, the Associated Press reported.

Religious services to mark Easter were scheduled for spectacular outdoor settings, in the ancient cathedrals of Europe and in the tiny churches of crossroad hamlets.

Two hundred thousand persons were expected to gather in the Wichita mountains near Lawton, Okla., for what may be the largest outdoor Easter service in the United States.

Thousands will crowd into the centuries old St. Peter's church in Rome, Notre Dame in Paris and St. Paul's in London.

Celebration of the resurrection began yesterday in St. Peter's with the ceremonial blessing of the fire in the entryway to the Basilica.

In Great Britain, western Germany, Czechoslovakia and some other countries the Easter week end brought a four day holiday.

CROSS BATTLEFIELDS

JERUSALEM — Military authorities arranged for Christians to cross Jewish and Arab lines for an Easter mass at the church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem's old city.

Representatives of many countries and of the United Nations in the Israeli-held new city attended the service in the old city, controlled by Trans-Jordan.

A small group including Mr. and Mrs. Marx F. Ethridge of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. James MacDonald, wife of the United States ambassador to Tel Aviv, picked their way to the Jaffa gate through the barbed wire and rubble of a no-man's land. Ethridge is U. N. conciliation commissioner in the Holy Land.

About 50 or 60 persons crossed through the Mandelbaum gate. Among them were American marines stationed here to guard the U. S. consulate and American, French and Belgian officers on the U. N. observer staff.

Adding to the peace note sounded over the world was word which came through just as the worshippers planned their journey to the old city for Easter — Israel and Syria had signed a peace treaty.

GOOD EASTER

GOOD EASTER, Eng.—The bells of St. Andrew's church, sounding over a countryside little changed in centuries, called the faithful last night to this parish's 1,180th observance of Easter.

Their message of peace chimed over thatched roofs of cottages built when Shakespeare was alive.

The exact origin of the name "Good Easter" is lost in legend.

But generations here have lived virtually the same serene, untroubled life which their descendants now enjoy.

The Rev. R. T. K. Griffin, the young vicar of St. Andrew's, explained the happiness of his parishioners by saying: "They don't worry. They just accept things as they are."

This Easter season brings greater promise to the people of Good Easter than for many years. Crops have been good and the spring brings hope of another good one next fall.

No one knows how old the village is, but there has been a church on the site of St. Andrew's since 769 A. D.

DOVE TAKES WING

ROME — Peace was the dominant word here today as the Christian world prepared to celebrate the anniversary of the resurrection.

At the entryway to the Basilica of St. Peter's the ceremonial blessing of fire was performed.

The communists' note also was on peace. The communist La Republica said 300 Italian delegates would leave Monday for the leftist-sponsored peace congress in Paris. The Communist Unita, continuing a "peace front" campaign, said the text of a petition against the North Atlantic treaty would be disclosed tomorrow. The communists have been attacking the alliance as a "pact for war."

Premier Alcide De Gasperi's Christian Democratic party countered with a manifesto that "democratic nations, to avoid a tragic destiny, have banded for defense."

In Florence a joyous shout rose from thousands of throats in the Piazza Del Duomo when the "Colombina" — a metal dove propelled by fireworks — made a successful flight in a Holy Saturday ceremony.

Hitchhiking Bunny Rides In Comfort

MASON CITY, Ia. — (AP) — An Easter Bunny "hooked" an automobile ride to Mason City during a snowstorm.

When Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Kohlhurst arrived in Mason City from their home in Clear Lake, 10 miles west of here, Kohlhurst went to get the oil in his car checked.

A service station attendant lifted the hood and out jumped a full grown rabbit. Kohlhurst said the rabbit apparently had taken refuge under the hood from the snow and cold.

Car Thefts Increasing

Auto thefts in three and half months have more than doubled the total number reported to police in 1948.

And Police Chief Jesse J. Schwab blames automobile owners for a good portion of these thefts.

There have been 21 cars stolen in Mansfield this year. During all of 1948 there were only 10 automobile thefts reported. The only bright side to the picture is that police have recovered all 21 of the stolen cars.

But Chief Schwab pointed out many times a stolen car is recovered with a burned out motor, a smashed fender or in some other way damaged.

After a car is stolen the thief doesn't handle it with any particular care.

DRIVERS CARELESS

Biggest factor in car thefts, Chief Schwab said, is the motorist who leaves his keys in a parked car. Police reports show nine motorists admitted they had left the keys in their car when reporting a theft to police.

Police are inclined to believe the percentage of persons leaving keys in the car is higher than the record discloses. The human factor of declining to admit carelessness enters in the picture.

"A good many of these automobile thefts occur on the spur of the moment. A car is spotted setting on the street with the keys in it and is stolen. If the opportunity hadn't presented itself, maybe that person would never had stolen a car," Chief Schawb said.

A general increase in crime in Mansfield, as well as in all parts of the country, is also partly to blame for the increase in the number of car thefts here, Chief Schwab believes.

T-H Act Repealer Shapes Up

Battle Looms On Injunctions

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A law to replace the Taft-Hartley act began to take clearer shape this week.

It appears very likely to (A) knock out one type of injunction, (B) legalize some secondary boycotts, (C) ease the closed shop ban to a certain extent, (D) change the rules for the union shop, and (E) allow people on strike to vote in plant elections.

This was shown by a comparison of the major proposals that are being made by both Democrats and Republicans in the House and Senate.

A long road of angry oratory and wire-pulling must be traveled before the final bill is complete. But provisions which can be reasonably forecast today on the basis of the principal ideas now evolved in congress are:

1. Injunctions. There are several types in the Taft-Hartley act. But one injunction provision seems on the way out. This is the one that requires the government to seek a temporary anti-union injunction every time it prosecutes a union on a secondary boycott charge.

2. Secondary boycotts. A secondary boycott is a union effort to win a dispute with one company by having the employes of other companies refuse to handle the first company's goods. All secondary boycotts are banned in the Taft-Hartley act. But all the new proposals would permit boycotts, under certain conditions, if a company whose workers are on strike sub-contracts its work to other companies.

3. Closed shop. The closed shop is an arrangement under which the employer hires only members of a particular union and fires any worker who loses his membership. It is banned under the Taft-Hartley act. Whether this ban will be eliminated, as proposed in the Truman bill, must still be decided. But it may be relaxed in some way.

4. Union shop and "maintenance of membership." The union shop is an arrangement under which the employer can hire anyone he pleases, but every new employe must then join the union and stay a member or get fired. A "maintenance of membership" contract compels no one to join the union at any time, but when people do join, they must remain members or get fired.

The Taft-Hartley act permits both types of contract, but not until a majority of the employes have voted their approval in a government-sponsored election. All the current proposals would do away with those elections.

5. Voting by strikers. The Taft-Hartley law says people on strike can't vote in plant elections. All the current proposals would permit people on strike to vote under most conditions.

2 Strikers Leave Jail

Granted Freedom In Fawick Row

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The Court of Appeals yesterday set bail and granted temporary freedom for two men jailed in connection with a strike at the Fawick Airflex company in suburban Brooklyn.

The prisoners, Joseph Krause and Norman Berman, were arrested Thursday on a charge of writing threatening letters to Common Pleas Judge James C. Connell. Their attorneys had pleaded for habeas corpus action.

They were the 17th and 18th individuals given temporary freedom by the Appellate Court this week in face of Judge Connell's decisions. Both men now have posted bonds of $500 and are scheduled to face trial before Judge Connell.

Judge Connell has been on the bench for most of the dramatic court action in connection with Fawick's five-week-old strike.

Last week, after finding 16 members of the CIO United Electrical Workers guilty of contempt of court by violating his peaceful picketing injunction, he jailed them and set their bond at $2,060,000.

Seek $18,000 to Wage Battle

Cancer Fund Drive To Start Tomorrow

"Will you give a dollar to fight cancer?" is the slogan which will be used in a campaign to raise $18,000 for cancer control in Mansfield.

The drive, which is being conducted by the Mansfield unit of the American Cancer society, will open Monday and continue through April 30.

Charles Spreng, chairman of the drive, said there will be no house to house campaigning. Contribution boxes will be placed in all Mansfield business establishments next week by members of Beta Phi Mu sorority.

Funds raised in the drive will be used to assure the continuation of the Mansfield cancer clinic, Spreng said.

In emphasizing the need for funds to fight cancer, Spreng pointed out 1,189 women and 370 men had visited the cancer clinic at Mansfield General hospital from September through February. The clinic also handled 21 recheck patients.

Of the total number, 16 positive cancer cases were found, 235 suspicious cancer cases were sent to physicians for further diagnosis, and 710 were referred to physicians for other abnormalities.

Records of the Mansfield-Richland county health department show 114 of the 769 deaths in this area in 1948 were due to cancer.

Cancer strikes both men and women. National figures show 52 per cent of all cancer victims are women, and 48 per cent are men.

Headquarters of the Mansfield drive will be at the YMCA. Checks should be made payable to the Mansfield unit of the American Cancer society and sent to campaign headquarters.

Michigan Educator To Address Foremen

Charles L. Anspach, president of Central Michigan College of Education at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., will be the speaker for the annual "ladies night" of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club tomorrow night.

The dinner-meeting, starting at 6:30 p. m., will be held at the Richland Recreation.

New Cancer Test Found

DETROIT —(AP)— A simple new blood test tells whether you have any kind of cancer, and finds it early, a leading cancer expert has reported.

The test is expected to be a big new weapon in cancer control. Lives are saved when hidden cancers are found and treated early.

It was announced by Dr. Charles B. Huggins, a surgeon and president of the American Association for Cancer Research, meeting here.

The test can tell if you have a small cancer, anywhere in the body. But it doesn't tell where the cancer is. Doctors would have to search for it.

The test gives the same result if you have cancer or lung tuberculosis, pneumonia, meningitis, or certain other serious infections. These would have to be ruled out before cancer was suspected. But you would have to be really sick with those diseases to get the same blood signal that cancer gives, Dr. Huggins explained.

This signal is a change in a protein, albumin, in the blood. A sample of diluted blood is heated. If it clots within a certain time, the blood is normal. But the blood takes much longer to clot if the person has cancer.

The blood test can best be done at cancer detection clinics, or other centers with laboratory facilities. It may be adopted by such clinics.

Blood tests were made on 300 persons at Chicago. Eighty-five were known to have cancer. One person has a very small, early cancer of the ear.

'Cry Baby' Alibis Hit

Scott, Sparkman In Verbal War

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Republican Chairman Hugh D. Scott jr., accused the Democrats yesterday of using "cry baby" alibis for Congress' failure thus far to complete much of President Truman's legislative program.

Senator Sparkman (D-Ala) said Scott is talking too soon and the 81st Congress will end "with an excellent job done."

Scott said:

"The Truman administration leaders on Capitol Hill are giving a perfect impersonation of the youthful bully who runs home to mama screaming that some boy much smaller than himself has punched him in the nose."

"The truth is," Scott said, "that there is no Democrat program. There is a Truman - CIO - Pendergast - Socialist program which substantially in its entirety has been repudiated by the 79th Democrat Congress, the 80th Republican Congress and is now in the process of repudiation by the Democrat 81st Congress.

Lad Hopes Easter Bunny Will Bring His Mother Back Home

LATROBE, Pa. — (AP) — Andy Tompos jr. is a grave-eyed freckled little boy with a great big problem. He wants a mother for Easter.

"I'm always worrying where I'll go when by grandma dies," the ten-year-old in faded denims and plaid shirt explained.

Andy, a third-grader, presented his problem in a letter to a local newspaper. Hardened editors gulped as they read the childish scrawl:

"Dear Friend:

"I am sending you my picture. I am little boy 10 years old. Andy Tompos jr. My address is R. F. D. Box 205 Latrobe, Pa. Everybody that has a mother has good luck. Everyone loves their mother. Maybe my mother will see my picture. Please mother come see me. Mother I love you. My grandmother is pretty old and sick all winter. Maybe my Easter bunny will bring me my mother. Please put it in the Easter Sunday paper. I love my mother. Write how much it cost. I will pay."

The paper investigated. Andy lives in a neat four-room house with his Ukrainian grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Oblywaniuk, in nearby Beatty mining patch. They explained they have not seen his mother, Helen, in five years. His father disappeared before he was born.

Marriage Tout Chooses Wrong Couple to Rush to Minister

COVINGTON, Ky. — (AP) — A marriage tout in this northern Kentucky Gretna Green approached the wrong couple yesterday and several hours later six persons were arrested on marriage touting charges.

The couple, from Columbus, who said they had been married for 15 years and were en route to Florida, told police their autobile was forced to the curb on a downtown street by a taxicab driver who said: "Get in and I'll get you married."

The Ohioans, whose names were not learned, accompanied Detective Chief Albert Seiter on a tour of the section where they had been approached but were unable to spot the alleged tout.

Justice of the Peace Charles O. Derrick of neighboring Newport, Ky., signed $100 bonds for four of the suspects. Less than an hour after his release, one of them again was arrested on a touting charge and was placed under $1,000 bond.

"Any couple can get married in a few hours," Seiter said, "if they know their way around.

"The touts take advantage of strangers," he added. "They steer them to a doctor and laboratory who will put the blood tests through immediately, all according to law. Then they take them to a justice of the peace. The groom generally is in a generous mood and tips the tout liberally."

MEXICO—Intrigues Vacationers Who Lean Toward Southwest

By ANN SCHOENMAN

For our glorious and different vacation this week, we'll take the roads leading to the southwest, to the land of color and contrast, — Mexico.

This land of old world delight and intoxicating beauty is touched here and there with the modern architecture of today.

As we motor over the older sections of the country, we are reminded of the time when the mighty Aztecs ruled this section of the new world. Although these Indians possessed a high degree of culture, perhaps, derived from their predecessors in in the country, the Aztecs were distinguished for their cruelty.

Buildings from the "city of gold," Tenochtitlan, now Mexico City, still are standing in several vicinities in the valley of Mexico. On our visit we find that some of the descendants of the Aztecs, still retaining their ancient language, reside in outlying villages in the neighborhood of Mexico City.

Another stop which is of great interest are the "Floating Gardens" of Xochimilco which date back to the 13th Century. When the Spaniards entered the central basin, they were surprised by the sight of large, orderly arranged settlements in the midst of great fields of blossoms intersected by canals along wh a brisk traffic was in progress.

Between the canals, on which we take a gondola canoe trip, manned by Indian boatmen, who pole through this fascinating beauty spot, are built small artificial islands known as chinampas, upon which flowers and vegetables are grown. The "islands" are formed of decaying vegetations, reeds and roots, which are anchored by thrusting/ qu growing slips of Salix Bonplandiana through them.

As we glide idly on the dark, flower-laden waters, we are reminded again that this was once enjoyed by kings and queens hundreds of years ago.

With the country of Mexico are associated bull-fights. Men, dressed in the gay festive costumes of the first toreadors, enter the rings for us to capture the romance and adventure of old Mexico.

Another stop which our magic carpet makes is at Teotihuacan, where the magnificent Aztec Pyramids still stand. First we see the Pyramid of the Moon . . . the great temple of Quetzalcoatl . . . the Citadel . . . all loom ing above us in majestic splendor. We ascend to the top of the towering Pyramid of the Sun where sunworshippers of ages past performed their elaborate and sacred rites.

All during our travels through which go with this exotic re-this Republic, we see scenes gion . . . orange boys . . . youthful water carriers . . . cobble stone streets . . . silversmith shops . . . and numerous other sights quickly associated with Mexico.

With our memory book filled with thoughts of Mexico, we head again for home. Yes, we bring to a close our trip to South of the Border and leave memorie.. of Cortes' march from the sea and the ancient Indians behind.

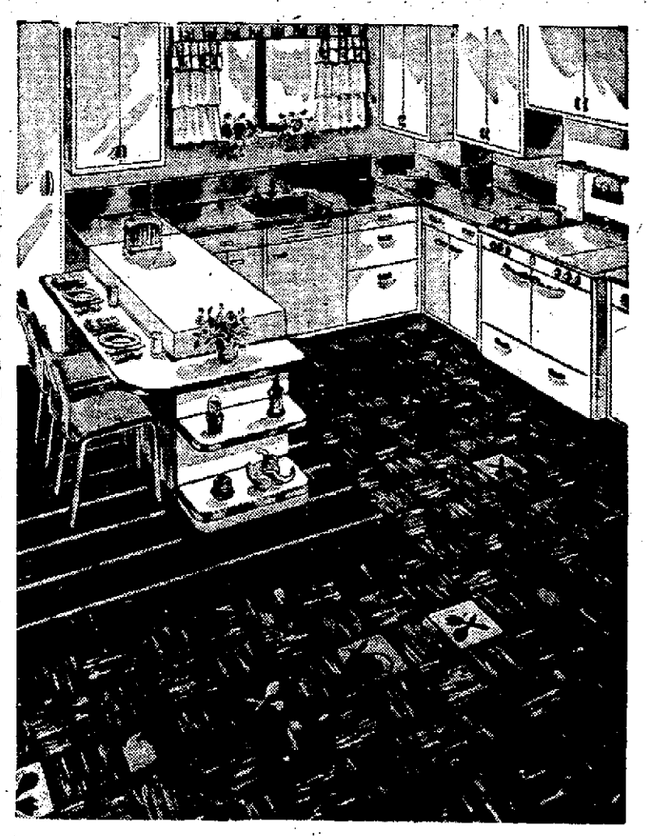
Kitchen Planning Is Made Easy

With Geneva's wide assortment of cabinet and sink sizes kitchens may be planned to utilize every foot of space without leaving unsightly, dirt-catching gaps between cabinets. Units are produced in modules of three inches. With the aid of fillers kitchen planners are able to fit them to practically any size or shape kitchen.

Where odd-size units or special construction features are needed, specially built cabinets are also available from Geneva at reasonable prices.

Kitchen planning service is available at Home Interiors . . . let us help you develop your ideas.



SMOOTH QUIET OPERATION

You can feel the quality that is built into each Geneva unit simply by operating drawers and doors. Drawers glide silently on non-metallic rollers regardless of load. Steel slides are fitted perfectly—cannot warp or stick. Double thickness door and drawer fronts are fully sound deadened and close against rubber bumpers to further eliminate noise. All moving parts are endurance tested for permanent and trouble-free operation.

Price Drops Might Bring Devaluation

Foreign Money Feels Pressure

NEW YORK — (AP) — Eventual devaluation of foreign currencies was seen today in Wall street as a possibility resulting from the pressure of declining American prices.

The sensitive New York market for foreign money has been unsettled several times recently by rumors of devaluation of major currencies abroad and by unverified reports of an impending change in the United States price of $35 an ounce for monetary gold.

All of these waves have passed without materially altering the basic exchange rates between the dollar and other currencies, which are fixed by the international monetary fund.

The British pound sterling is officially valued at about $4.03, but you can buy various other kinds of sterling at cut prices as low as $1.50.

The big pressure on foreign money, as seen in wall street, is the slowly settling level of American prices which makes it more difficult day by day for other countries to sell their higher priced wares in this country in competition with American goods.

If they can't sell here, they can't get dollars to buy here. That kind of stagnation in international trade puts the squeeze on foreign money. Devaluation is the quick way out. Some authorities think it is the only way out. You can, of course, raise a storm of argument on that point. Meanwhile, everyone is watching Britain.

All eyes are on the British pound sterling which once was the ruler of the value of the world's monies. The dollar took the ace spot as a result of the depression and the last war. But now sterling is trying a comeback along a hard and rocky road. If Britain is forced to devalue the pound against the dollar, many other major currencies are sure to follow.

The value of sterling depends on the health of British business, and the health of business depends to a major degree on the increase in their volume of exports— particularly to the U. S. and countries that can pay in dollars.

If American prices decline, British prices on exports also must decline or British goods will be undersold and lose their market. Devaluation of sterling would cut British export prices and place their wares in a better competitive position.

Small Home Design No. 11

2-Floor Cape Cod Home Has Space For Three Bedrooms

By DEAN H. ROBINSON

This small Cape Cod style home was designed to give an abundance of pleasant living at a economical price. The scale model shows the home constructed of red brick with a natural cedar shingle roof. However, the home would look equally attractive if finished in wide wood siding or cinder blocks with the vertical joint filled flush to the surface and the horizontal joints open to assimilate the appearance of wood siding.

You enter this small home into a reception room and to the left is an open planned living and dining area that gives these rooms an unusual spacious look.

There are 4 French windows in this area that extend nearly to the floor allowing lots of cheerful light to come inside. The natural fireplace on the outside wall adds a cozy corner to the living room.

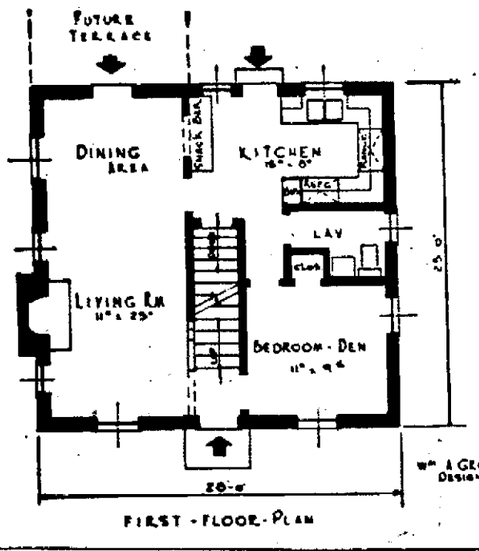
You go directly from the dining area into the kitchen which is exceptionally large for this small home. There is a snack bar in one end of the kitchen which will accommodate three stools and gives the children a place to eat their lunch. The working part of the kitchen is U-shaped with a pleasant window directly over the sink affording a view of the ladscaped outdoor living area in the back. There is an unusual amount of shelf space and work counters in this small kitchen. There is also a broom closet next to the refrigerator, and off from the kitchen and between it and the bedroom, or downstairs den, is a lavatory, which saves many steps in a two-story home.

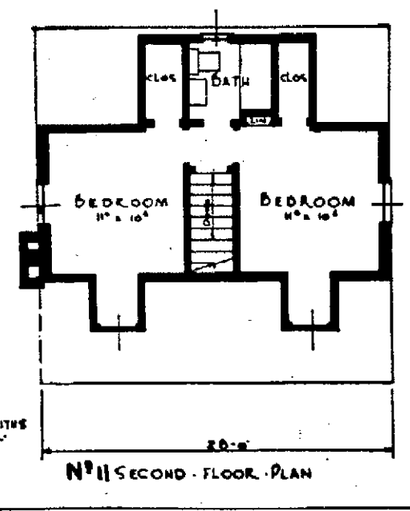
The downstairs could be converted into a very pleasant den or all-purpose activities room if it was not needed as a bedroom. A wall bed could be installed along the side by the stairs which could be let down in the case of unexpected guests.

The stairs directly in front of the entrance way lead upstairs to two large bedrooms, each of which have cross ventilation and large closets. There is a convenient bathroom directly at the head of these stairs.

The basement is under the whole house and provides for a large laundry, heater and storage room and recreation area.

This is a very economical small home that contains an unusual amount of convenient living space in an area only 28 x 25 feet.





New Flying Champs Will Stay Aloft

FULLERTON, CALIF. — (AP) — The new endura..c flying champions are confident they can stay aloft at least 10 more days.

Dick Riedel and Bill Barris, of Fullerton, have passed the three-quarter mark on their goal of 1,000 hours. From no on it's up to the Sunkist Lady. The little plane carried the two fliers past the 10-year record of 726 hours set by Wes Carroll and Clyde Schlieper. That was at :44 p. m., (PST) Thursday.

Barris and Riedel say their plane's motor still sounds mighty sweet.

The quarters are cramped, the pilots confess, but otherwise they have almost all the comforts of home.

DRAINAGE NEEDED

A 6-inch gravel or cinder fill in sandy soil, 12 inches in clay, provides necessary drainage beneath walk and driveway to prevent cracking of concrete by freezing.

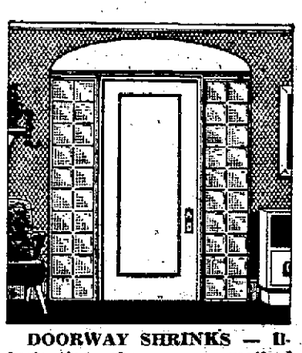
Tar Paper Used To Halt Seepage

Wet basements are often caused by surface water seeping down beside the foundation after rain or snow storms. This rarely occurs if the yard-grade slopes away from the house. Since new grading is costly, inexpensive and effective drainage can be obtained by burying sheets of tarred roofing paper in the ground beside the foundation.

Starting at the basement wall about 3" below the surface, the earth is scraped back for a distance of 3' from the wall, slanting downward and outward to a depth of about 18".

STORM WINDOW CARE

Before storing storm windows, examine them for loose putty and peeled paint and repair the damage before putting away. Store the sashes perfectly flat to prevent warping; better yet, hang them up in a dry place so air can circulate around them.



DOORWAY SHRINKS — Illustration shows one method used to change a large, old fashioned doorway into one of modern design.

FILLS CRACKS

A combined crack filler and paint for plaster surfaces has been developed which will seal up all small fissures in walls and ceilings and provide a pastel color in one operation.

Kitchen Decorating Tip

ROOM RECIPES

Does your kitchen lack something—even with new appliances and gleaming white cabinets? Decorators advise a touch of contrast. Like the deeper, richer shades of Nairn Linoleum.

For sink and counters you'll want tops of linoleum to go with the floor. It's as practical as it is good-looking—easy on dishes and glassware, too.

Be sure to see our display of the lovely new patterns. Bring your room measurements—you'll be pleasantly surprised at the economy of genuine inlaid Nairn Linoleum.

Three Pennsy Trains Serving City to be Removed April 24

Changes In Schedules Announced

Daylight Time Brings Shake-Up

Removal of three Pennsylvania trains serving Mansfield, effective April 24, was announced yesterday with operating time changes by H. R. Williams, Pennsylvania passenger and freight agent in Mansfield.

The schedule changes coincide with the shift to daylight saving next Sunday in the east and several Ohio cities. Mansfield's time will not change.

There was no explanation for removal of the three trains, but it was presumed the action was taken because of lighter passenger traffic and rising operating costs.

One of the trains to be dropped operates between Mansfield, Toledo and Detroit. This train now leaves here at 5 p. m. daily, and leaves Detroit on its return trip at 11 a. m., arriving in Mansfield at 2:25 p. m.

Also cancelled was the Chicago Express, westbound, which leaves Mansfield now at 12:44 a. m. This train is the only one stopping at Mansfield that has sleeper accommodations to Chicago.

"Many Mansfield business men take this Chicago train regularly; some of them are on it every night of the week," Williams said.

FEW NIGHT TRAINS

He pointed out that at present there is no other westbound train near this train's time with the exception of the Trailblazer, two hours later, an all-coach train.

Other changes in the Pennsylvania schedule include six Chicago-bound trains stopping at Mansfield.

Affected are the Manhattan Limited, now leaving Mansfield at 8:41 a. m., which will leave at 7:41 a. m.; The Fort Pitt, now leaving at 4:45 p. m., will leave at 3:45 p. m.; the Sunday-only train, No. 123, now leaving at 6:52 p. m., will leave at 5:57 p. m.

The week-day train, No. 113, now leaving at 7:25 p. m., will leave at 6:30 p. m.; the Pittsburgh - Detroit Express, now leaving at 3:35 a. m., will leave at 2:35 p. m., and the Trailblazer, now leaving at 3:46 a. m., will leave at 2:46 a. m.

Eastbound trains affected are the Detroit-Pittsburgh Express, now leaving Mansfield at 3:35 a. m., which will depart at 2:35 a. m.; the Fort Pitt, now leaving at 2:53 p. m., will leave just three minutes earlier, at 2:50 p. m.; the Admiral, now leaving at 8:32 p. m., will leave at 7:35 p. m.; the Red Arrow out of Detroit, now leaving at 8:56 p. m., will leave at 8:42 p. m.; the Trailblazer, now leaving at 9:07 p. m., will leave at 9:02 p. m., and the Rainbow, now leaving at 11:50 p. m., will leave at 11:05 p. m.

Williams said these schedules were tentative and persons should consult the Pennsylvania ticket agency before making any definite plans for taking a particular train.

Awarded $295 In Damages

Sylvester H. Harrer, of Shelby, was awarded a judgment of $295 in common pleas court from John C. Knox jr., of Wilkinsburg, Pa., a journal entry shows.

Harrer sued for car damages and medical expenses for his daughter as a result of an accident at West Fourth street and Western avenue May 27, 1946. He claimed the Knox car struck his while he was stopped for the stop light.

Another auto accident case has been settled and the case dismissed, with the defendant, E. E. Rubrake, of Milford Center paying court costs

He had been sued by Gordon Duckworth of 31 West Arch street for $350 as a result of an accident on Oct. 15, 1948 at Park avenue east and Hedges street.

Damage Suit Asks $20.000

Mrs Charlotte Doerrer Mansfield, R D. 3, yesterday filed a $20,000 personal injury suit in common pleas court as a result of an auto crash on June 26, 1948

Mrs. Doerrer charges she suffered permanent injuries of the neck and head and nervous system when a car driven by Walter Gammon jr , Ashland, R D 5 smashed into one driven by her husband, Ralph

Mrs. Doerrer says in the petition her car was stopped for a traffic light at the intersection of North Diamond and East Third streets when Gammon's car hit the back of the Doerrer auto.

Cat Departs; Dog Tends Her Kittens

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Mother love, it seems, has no bounds.

Stinky, a familiar feline figure along the Los Angeles harbor waterfront, went foraging for food this morning for her four kittens, born April 4.

The cat got aboard the Kenyon Victory and wasn't discovered until after the freighter had shoved off for San Francisco. And there were the 12-day old kittens back on the dock, without mama.

The Isthmian Steamship company, which let Stinky and her brood have a pier a shed for a home, put in a hurryup call to its San Francisco office. The order: Put Stinky on the first boat back to Los Angeles.

In the meanwhile, Walter Dialorke, waterfront detective, located Brownie, a dog of uncertain parentage, but a recent mother herself.

So Stinky's kittens are taking pot luck with Brownie's two pups. The traffic is heavy at mealtime, but so far no cat and dog fights.

Senior High Musicians Mark 'Red Letter' Days

The Tyger Band and Orchestra at Senior High school have marked three red letter days on their spring calendar. The first of these will be the annual spring concert sponsored by the Band and Orchestra Parents club on Tuesday, May 3.

The second is the Sunday afternoon concert on May 15 which the Tyger band will give for the inmates of the Ohio State reformatory. The final event will be the dinner and dance, honoring band and orchestra members, by the Parents club on May 18.

Plans are about completed for the annual spring concert. It will be given at the Senior High auditorium at 8 p. m.

The program this year will be in two parts with the orchestra presenting the first part and the band the second. As an interlude, a string quartet with Richard Eliot as director will play and there will be an accordion solo by Joan Christman.

Tickets may be obtained from students, members of the Band Parents' club and at the door the night of the concert.

$265,000 In Hospital Bills Paid for Mansfielders In 1948

A $265,000 reason for joining the Blue Cross-Blue Shield community enrollment, now underway, was presented Mansfield families today by Wayne Copeland, superintendent of Mansfield General hospital.

The $265,000 represents the amount of hospital bills paid by Blue Cross for Mansfield subscribers last year, according to Copeland.

The community enrollment in the Blue Cross Hospitalization Plan and Blue Shield Surgical Carewill continue through Wednesday. It offers non-profit, prepaid hospital and surgical care to all Mansfield residents — regardless of age or physical condition. Application stations are located in the M. O'Neil company department store and Farmers Bank Bldg.

Copeland pointed out that "scores of Mansfield families — stricken by unexpected sickness last year — would have incurred heavy debts, and perhaps would have seen their life's savings vanish, had they not been protected by Blue Cross."

The hospital executive reported that Akron Hospital Service — administrator of Blue Cross and Blue Shield in this area — spent a total of $325,000 to pay hospital bills for Blue Cross subscribers in Richland County during 1948. More than half the residents of the county are enrolled, he said.

The enrollment presents the self-employed, retired, unemployed and those working for firms having fewer than 10 employes with their first opportunity to obtain hospitalization and surgical care at special community rates.

Tabby Or Not Tabby, Pussy Footing Will Come to 'Paws'!

CHICAGO—(AP)—Is a cat a public nuisance when not on its owner's property?

If Governor Adlai Stevenson signs a bill approved by the Illinois legislature this week, the tabbies will be just that.

The cat control bill, which was described by its sponsors as a measure to protect birds, has wounded many a pet owner.

Letters and telegrams of protest have been arriving at the governor's Springfield office in bundles.

The bill was shepherded through the General assembly by Miss Gertrude Charny of Chicago, a little white-haired woman who heads an organization called Birds, Incorporated.

The bill's provisions make a cat which pussy-foots around the block subject to capture by any person, who may turn the animal over to law authorities. The owner must pay one dollar to reclaim the pet.

The money paid by owners to ransom their animals will go toward "conservation, propagation and preservation of insectiverous birds." (That means bug-eating birds.)

"The bill is a little one-sided," said Norman Ross, president of the suburban Evanston Humane society. "It does nothing to keep birds from annoying cats."

Push City Manager Proposal

Backers to Form Committee Tuesday

A permanent working organization to place the much-discussed city manager type of government before Mansfield voters will be formed at a meeting scheduled for 7.30 p. m. Tuesday at John Simpson Junior High school.

Preceding the organization meeting, Walter J. Millard of Cincinnati, municipal consultant and authority on the council-manager plan, will talk on the plan.

"The purpose of Millard's appearance here and the purpose of the meeting is to inform the people of Mansfield on the council-manager plan," J. C. Gorman and James L. Young, temporary co-chairman of the movement, said.

At a preliminary organization meeting on April 5, a committee was formed which has been active in setting up this public meeting.

Tuesday permanent officers will be elected and backers of the movement expect to organize a committee of 100 or more persons to provide the working support for the officers.

Anyone willing to work can become a member of the committee, Gorman said.

AIDS ORGANIZATION

Monday, Millard will work with a temporary committee in laying out a campaign program. Activities will include preparation and distribution of literature, circulation of petitions, establishment and operation of a speaker's bureau, and development of a complete publicity and information movement.

One of the features of Millard's appearance here is expected to be the question and answer period that will follow his talk.

Persons attending the meeting will receive a form to facilitate preparation of questions and for making notes on the meeting. The speaker will discuss these questions with the audience.

In an effort to obtain a representative audience, the temporary committee has contacted churches, civic organizations, industries, stores, professional groups and management and labor.

Committeemen said Millard has 25 years experience working with council-manager plan and Tuesday night will probably be the best opportunity Mansfielders will ever have for getting questions answered and obtaining information on the spot.

A hit-skip accident also was reported to police. Doris M. Howell, of 155 North Welden avenue, told police her automobile was struck by a hit-skip car yesterday while she was waiting for the light at Sixth and Mulberry streets, damaging the left rear fender of her car.

The other car, about a 1937 model blue sedan, did not stop, she told police.

SURPRISE FOR PASTOR—

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, hadn't planned any special celebration of his birthday this year, but his friends had a different idea. Friday night when Rev. and Mrs. Roller returned home, they found their home full of friends who had planned a surprise party for Rev. Roller, whose birthday was yesterday. In addition to a birthday cake and all the timmings, they had hung an enlarged photograph of the guest of honor over the mantel. The picture was unveiled during the festivities. Tonight Rev. Roller will go out to dinner with friends, for a brief break in his heavy schedule of Easter activities. Next week the Rollers plan to get a few days' rest when they go to Columbus where Rev. Roller will receive the 33rd degree of the Masonic lodge.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Easter Symbolizes Enduring Faith

IN ALL THE RECORDED history of mankind, in all literature—sacred or secular—there is no more dramatic story than the opening of the tomb on Easter morning. In popular thought the Resurrection is linked inevitably with the reawakening of life each spring, after the cold slumber of winter.

Indeed, Easter and springtime are symbols of eternal life, of a new living after death.

Today, the solemnity of Lent is cast aside for the joyous anthems of hope and promises fulfilled. Fasting is ended. Feasting on brightly colored eggs and the traditional ham-topped dinner is in order.

This is a particularly gay day for children with its legend of the Easter rabbit, the new clothing, and songs and recitations at Sunday school.

In a world which seems still deadened by the winter of international fear and distrust, this day should be marked with gratitude by all those living in lands where they are still free to practice the religion they have taken to their hearts.

Indeed, it might be well to substitute compassion for disquiet in our thinking of the people behind the Iron Curtain who, if they dare think of Easter at all, must observe it with inadequate food and clothing instead of with a bit of a family splurge.

Perhaps we can add to our joy, the hope that some day these peoples will throw off the bondage of mind and body into which they have been led by false promises. Perhaps it is right for us to hope that one day the whole earth will join as one congregation in an anthem to a brighter and better tomorrow.

Choice Rests With Individual

THERE is a growing tendency among some social-minded people to put all of the blame for delinquency and crime on the circumstances which surround the criminal.

A Cleveland judge, presiding in a recent murder case, spoke strongly against this practice. A veteran of World War II who had been found guilty of the hold-up murder of a grocer received the death sentence, and in his speech the judge asserted that there was not the slightest doubt of the guilt of the accused, whom he described as being his own worst enemy.

The judge pointed out that the man had had an excellent start in life, a good wife whom he had deserted, and good care in a veterans' hospital. Said the judge:

> "You had a chance to make a good life. Why you were caught in these circumstances, we don't know, but you made these circumstances—nobody else."

Individual freedom is only one side of a coin. The other side is individual responsibility. The fact that we have a great measure of freedom of choice in our lives has a corollary in the fact that we should be made to feel responsible for our choice. Most criminals are self-made.

Students From Abroad See America

IN A RECENT meeting of the National Association of Foreign Student Advisers the fact was brought out that last year every accredited college in the United States had at least one foreign student.

Exchange of students between this nation and others is an exchange of personalities, on the most effective basis imaginable. When ambassadors and ministers are exchanged, they meet others of their kind and a few government officials and capital reporters. When intellectuals are exchanged, they meet other intellectuals and make brief, distant contacts with lecture audiences and afternoon party-goers.

When students are exchanged, they meet and live with really representative people, other students, teachers, housekeepers, merchants, bus drivers and the rest. In the course of a school year, a foreign student and the surrounding Americans get to know and understand each other. And the influence of the contact is spread to other friends by both the visitor and the host.

It is a fine thing that every accredited college has participated in this program. It is also good to know that there are now nearly 25,000 foreign students in the United States, for these are 25,000 points of personal contact at which can be developed the beginnings of real world understanding.

What Makes 'Good' Poetry?

THE most-written-about of living poets is, curiously enough, one of the least read by the average man or woman. Even his name is familiar to only a few. This is T. S. Eliot, this year's Nobel Prize winner for literature, who was recently discussed by Malcolm Cowley, the critic, in the New York Herald-Tribune weekly book review.

If poets and critics read Eliot, and the man in the street doesn't, this need occasion no supercilious remarks about the low state of popular taste. One of the best sellers of all American poets ranks at the very top of the heap, critically speaking. This is the poetical chronicler of the New England scene, Robert Frost. Not all good poets are widely read, but neither are they all obscure.

Inventions Still Being Awaited

FOR INVENTORS looking for something to invent, a list of problems which await solution has been made by Oscar L. Chapman, undersecretary of the interior.

One is a cheap method for purifying ocean water, and then turning it onto the dry land of California and adjoining states. Another is a way to control rain. As for a method of utilizing the heat energy of the earth, a heat pump has already been developed, but little use has as yet been made of it.

Anyone with an ingenious son who likes to tinker should call his attention to these needs. Many an epoch-making discovery has come from the unguided and unsuppressed experiments of a persistent young man.

Thrift shows in various ways, an item from Chicago pointing out that: "The money spent annually in repairing window breakage in Chicago schools could nearly pay for a new school."

Hoover Report Blueprints the Way To Reduce Government Inefficiency

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

THE Hoover Report on the reorganization of American government, or more properly speaking of the executive and administrative branches, has been concluded and published. It is the result of research and planning by two or three hundred of the best and most able minds in the U. S. or in the world, compiled under the direction of one of the world's top administrators, Herbert Hoover. Nearly two years of careful thought and consideration have been given to the report and although some of us might disagree with details here and there, it is a magnificent document, blueprinting the possibility of escape for the American people from increasing burden of duplication, red tape, extravagance, general muddling and higher and higher taxes. It now remains to be seen what will be done with it.

BROMFIELD

The American government is the biggest business in the world, overtopping many times even the operations of the most gigantic world cartels of the past.

It is also one of the most inefficient organizations in the world, carelessly and extravagantly operated, with endless duplications.

Any business operating with the same degree of befuddlement would long ago have gone into bankruptcy, a situation which is not impossible for the American government if constantly increasing taxes and bureaucratic employment continue.

It is only the wealth of the U. S. and the fact that the taxpayer can be tapped almost but not quite indefinitely to make up the deficits caused by inefficiency, that it is able to continue.

* * *

Pressure Necessary.

THE QUESTION is now whether anything will be done about the reorganization upon a sensible and business like basis. If anything is done, the pressure will have to come from the American people, who could profit by at least two or three billions a year as well as by greater efficiency and better government.

We cannot expect bureaucracy to ask for its own liquidation or reform nor can we look for aid to the professional politician, who might see some of his gravy and his political power of appointment taken from him.

And certainly there is little hope of help from Mr. Truman. The words "economy" and "efficiency" seem not to exist within the narrow limits of his vocabulary.

He has never asked either for economy or efficiency or the saving of money but only for more bureaus, more muddle and expensive bureaucratic controls, bigger budgets and higher and higher taxes. Mr. Truman is primarily a politician and bureaucrat. He was brought up in both schools and has never risen above them.

The pressure for decent reforms and an efficient government will have to come from the people through their direct representatives in Congress.

It would be both remarkable and wonderful if the people exerted this pressure and demanded that the house of government should be cleaned. It could be done by organizing clubs and committees, by writing letters, by interviewing their representatives to bring about the implementation of the reforms proposed by the Hoover Commission.

* * *

A People's Lobby.

THERE should be a people's lobby organized. Every other interest but the people has lobbies and the very worst of these lobbies—even worse then any used by Big Business or by Big Labor or by the Farm Bloc—are the lobbies within the government. They operate in Washington itself and they even hire with taxpayers' money "public relations" agents to make propaganda and exert pressures.

The armed forces, perhaps the most notoriously extravagant and administratively inefficient arm of our government, are notable in this respect.

In the sense of good and efficient government, the mob of bureaucrats and the armed forces have become actually enemies of the people, placing their red tape, the endless duplication of effort and spending and their petty feuds above the interests of the nation itself.

The whole issue is vital to the future of the nation for if we continue as we are going, the incredible burden of an extravagant and often idiotically mismanaged government, can bring only more and more taxes, more and more debt and finally the death of free enterprise and with it the death of liberty. . .a tragedy which is happening in England, once considered the home of freedom.

You might begin at once to work on your own representatives and senators and show that you are backing them against the bureaucrats and the organization politicians.

And you might just suggest to Mr. Truman that while complaining about a balanced budget and the overwhelming burden of debt, he might just make a teeny weeny little effort to save some money rather than asking constantly for more money, more bureaus and more inefficiency.

The people will have to force the issue. In the welter of government in Washington, there are mighty few people who are thinking of anything but themselves.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On April 17, 1693, the house of parliament provided that British officers, marines and seamen receive one-eighth of the value of prizes taken in battle.

It Says Here:

—By KEN WOODMAN

CERTAIN days are apt to stick in one's memory. There was the Easter morning many years ago when the child was routed from his bed while it was still dark. Grumbling somewhat, he put on his clothes and went with the family to sunrise service.

* * *

There was nothing outstanding about the service. Just the usual Easter morning hymns, several prayers, and a reading of the scripture. Indeed, the youngster noted that the people hadn't even bothered to put on their "new clothes" for the early service.

* * *

Yet, somehow, the memory remains of sunlight breaking red and gold across the eastern sky as the little congregation filed out of the church, with parents trying to talk quietly while children pleaded eagerly for a chance to go home and hunt hidden colored eggs. Easter could be described in many more weighty words, now, yet essentially it is a bright dawn—of a new season and new hopes.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Health of Officials Is Public Concern

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Several people have written asking why it was necessary to bring out the unpleasant facts about James V. Forrestal's nervous breakdown. About an equal number have asked why these facts were not brought out before. It is always difficult to decide where the right of personal privacy ends, and newspapers from time to time have applied varying standards. For instance, when Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt accidentally cut her arm in her bathroom, many newspapers front paged a story to the effect that she had tried to slash her wrist. And when Mrs. James Roosevelt was taken to the hospital suffering from an overdose of sleeping pills, it was also front-page news in many papers.

PEARSON

On the other hand, when James V. Forrestal was recently involved in accidents similar to the above, many Washington newspapermen chose to ignore the facts.

Both Mrs. Roosevelts are private individuals and their husbands do not hold and have not held public office. What they do affects only three or four people in their immediate family.

On the other hand, the secretary of national defense is the most powerful member of the cabinet whose decisions directly affected two million men in the armed services, and indirectly the peace of the world. His mental equilibrium his saneness, his soundness of judgement are of importance to almost everyone.

Most newspapers have held that when a man holds public office — even minor public office—then the right of privacy cannot apply. And the higher the position of public trust, the more important it is to know conditions of health and soundness of mind.

* * *

Woodrow Wilson's Health.

SOMETIMES, however, it happens that the higher the office, the greater the power to suppress the facts. A cabinet member or high official surrounded by skilled public-relations experts and with many newspaper friends usually gets more immunity than the ordinary person who lacks this protection.

Once, after World War I, this country faced a tragic period of vacillation while a stricken President was confined to his bed, and while Mrs. Woodrow Wilson quarreled with the Senate.

Some historians believe that had it not been for that period of vacillation, the peace machinery proposed by the League of Nations might have been saved and World War II avoided.

Again, toward the end of World War II, it is possible that had the deatails of Franklin Roosevelt's health been known, the outcome of the 1944 election and certain vital diplomatic decisions might have been different.

That is why most newspapers have taken the position that the health and mentality of government officials must not be withheld from the people they serve and whose future they influence.

That is why it would seem that the public is entitled to have the facts regarding the soundness of judgment and mental balance during James Forrestal's last months in office.

This column does not claim to know all the facts regarding Forrestal's recent mental balance. It is known, however, that he was not supposed to leave office until March 31, yet suddenly and without explanation the White House advanced his exit by four days. Since then he has suffered a complete nervous breakdown.

It is also known that shortly before he retired, Forrestal was obsessed with the idea that he was under FBI investigation and kept calling the justice department asking that the FBI men be called off. He was also obsessed with the idea that dictaphones had been placed inside his house and that he was being shadowed.

* * *

Powerful Cabinet Member.

MR. FORRESTAL had been extremely close to the President, and during most of the Truman administration had great influence. He was able, for instance to reverse the administration's entire Palestine policy over one week end.

By so doing, he also reversed the United Nations policy toward Palestine, since the UN had to go along with what amounted to a sudden American veto.

The United Nations had taken its position after weeks of debate, and to be reversed over the week end by one man was one of the most disheartening setbacks it received.

Yet Forrestal, who has great charm and persuasion, was able to put this across with Truman, almost entirely on his own. Diplomats—both American and foreign—generally regard the reversal as a serious error; and some are now wondering whether Mr. Forrestal could have had mature and balanced judgment at that time.

Forrestal is responsible for other major decisions, including the rebuilding of German heavy industry in the Ruhr; the proposed shipment of arms to Latin America despite the rash of military dictators there; and the carrying out of Army-Navy unification.

* * *

Last November's Mistake.

MR. FORRESTAL'S friends say that although he has been working hard, his pace has been no greater than usual. And they attribute his present mental depression to his error in not supporting Truman last November.

One friend who dined with the secretary of defense last February told him bluntly the fact that he had not gone out and made speeches for Truman. If he had spoken in upper New York state, he thought, he could have swung the state for the President.

During the campaign he had access to the closest ear and had cleared many appointments with him; that Dewey paid tribute to Forrestal in one press conference as about the only man qualified as cabinet material.

This failure to support the man who had appointed him to the high position of Secretary of National Defense caused Forrestal to experience a severe state of mental depression, according to his friends. For the past several months, they say, he has been feeling sorry for himself and calling himself a failure.

Assignment: America

No Dodging 'Salad Test'

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK—Sometimes it is very difficult for a real sincere girl to know whether she is going around with a genius or a jerk. But Life Magazine has certainly simplified the problem. I have just been thumbing an issue that contains a picture chart which will enable anyone almost instantly to tell whether he or his loved one is an Einstein or an idiot. On account of lots of people do not know, apparently. According to this chart, man's choice of certain objects in eleven broad categories, ranging from salads and alcoholic drinks through clothes, furniture, entertainment, reading and games, are an infallable clue to whether he is a member of the intelligentsia or the pool parlor set.

INEZ ROBB

It seems to me the crucial test is the salad test. According to the "Life" chart, you can tell a man by the greens he chomps.

If he takes his salad straight, in an unwashed bowl, made strictly with assorted alfalfas and tossed together with olive oil, wine vinegar and freshly ground pepper and salt, then take it from "Life," he is an unmitigated high brow who likes ballet, Picasso and modern furniture.

But if, on the other hand, he likes cold slaw and washes down this limp, pallid excelsior with beer, make no mistake: He is a lug and ought to get lost on the double.

The cold slaw-beer man, according to the "Life" chart, is just one peg above the ape man, roaming the forest primeval.

* * *

A Hopeless Case.

NOW that "Life" has brought it out in the open, I suppose there is scarcely a family in America that does not have its cold slaw problem. Uncle Willie was the cold-slaw aficionado in our family and a nicer man never lived until he got his first taste of it.

Grandpaw, Uncle Willie's father, that is, took Uncle Willie's dereliction hard. Grandpaw was a real high brow, all right, a strict greens and garlic man, who read Homer in the original and drank a jug of red wine every meal.

Well, Grandpaw sent Uncle Willie off to Harvard and it was a terrible thing when Willie came home with cold slaw on his breath. Liked to killed the old man. He had had high hopes for Uncle Willie, sort of set his heart on making an encyclopedia salesman out of him.

But things went from bad to worse. Uncle Willie even took the Keeley cure. But it was no use. Finally, in desperation, he joined Cold Slaw Anonymous. It helped for a while, until Uncle Willie was passing the corner coffee pot one day and caught a whiff of that odor—

Uncle Willie degenerated into a lone cold slaw eater. Eventually, he just sort of disappeared. We heard later that he had gone underground and joined a cold slaw cell.

Uncle Ashe, Willie's brother, came to a sad end, too. Uncle Ashe was a real member of the literati and no mistake. He not only insisted on chomping his greens pure and undefiled by avodacos, tomatoes or roquefort cheese (all "Life" salad signs of the inferior man), but on making the salad dressing at the table.

"Life," a real high class magazine, naturally does not even mention the kind of character who would order a tea shoppe salad. It is obvious that such a party is better off dead.

But, leave us face it: There is one in every family.

Words of the Wise

Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall.—Proverbs 16:18.

He who has put a good finish to his undertaking is said to have placed a golden crown to the whole.—Eustathius, Archbishop of Thessalonica.

Listen World

Is 'Truth' Universal?

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IN SPITE of the confusion, turmoil and bewilderment which cloud many of the big issues in the world today, most of us have pretty definite—if not belligerent—convictions concerning certain matters and will spout said convictions by the hour if given half a chance.

One of the issues on which our minds are made up is the moral code or standard of personal conduct which we human beings should follow. Strangely enough, we are more inclined to apply this standard to the Other Fellow than to ourselves, probably because we belive that we ourselves follow, in the main, a strict moral code. And if there are occasional lapses in our own conduct, we can easily explain them away or excuse them on perfectly valid grounds. Or so we persuade ourselves.

Thus our criticism is generally directed toward someone else. We are quick to see the Other Fellow's faults and eager to point them out to our neighbors or even to him, in which case we're "telling him the truth about himself for his own good."

The great objection to telling the other chap the truth about himself is that it isn't the truth. It may be your truth but it isn't his truth.

How do we determine the rightness or wrongness of our actions? Most of us will say that each of us knows what's right or wrong because there's a "still, small voice" of conscience within which tells us. This we have been taught from childhood. But our teachers seem to have forgotten one thing. They didn't tell us that though we all have still, small voices, they are not the same still, small voices. No one person's conscience can serve for his neighbor.

How much misunderstanding, trouble and grief could be avoided if we'd only realize this fact! Instead of pestering the Other Fellow, insisting that he follow our conscience which we mistakenly believe to conform to a universal standard of conduct, why shouldn't we stand aside and let him listen to his own conscience and be guided accordingly?

You may be convinced that you're right and he's wrong but how can you judge? He's just as convinced that he's right and you're wrong.

There's a situation in that remarkable Italian film "Paisan" which illustrates this point. Three chaplains—one Catholic, one Protestant and one Jewish—are given shelter in a monastery where the Catholic chaplain is chided, gently, for not trying to convert the other two.

He is disturbed by the implied criticism of the other good priests but is forced to admit that he cannot feel remiss in his duty because through long and intimate association he knows the other two chaplains are good men even though their creeds differ from his own, and each is convinced in his own mind that his creed is right. The Catholic chaplain did not feel qualified to judge.

What's the truth for the other fellow may not be the truth for you, so don't copy. And what's the truth for you very likely is not the truth for him. So don't try to force him to copy. Each one of us must establish his own moral code and live up to it.

Dave Boone Says:

TODAY is Easter. The miracle of the resurrection is seen on every side in the miracle of Spring. In every tree breaking into leaf from bleak boughs and in every bud bursting from the cold earth of a long winter there is the Easter story.

* * *

Folks have readied up their swell duds for the traditional style parade. But that's all superficial. The real thing that matters is what goes on in the heart of man.

* * *

"And looking, they saw the stone rolled back. And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed with a white robe, and they were astonished: who saith to them be not affrighted: He is risen."

* * *

The gospel from St. Mark stirs people today as it seldom has before. "Go and tell his disciples and Peter that He goeth before you into Galilee. There you shall see Him as He told you."

Timely Prayer

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

Mend my own fault, Lord,
When I bemoan
Anothers weakness,
Blind to my own.

Mend my own fault, Lord;
Teach me to be Tolerant always
Of frailty.

Mend my own fault, Lord;
Keep my tongue still.
Bend me and guide me
To do Thy will.

Mend my own fault, Lord;
Direct my gaze
To my shortcomings,
My twisted ways.

Barnett Faces Mental Examination; Enters Two Pleas

Boy Denies Slaying of Sister, 21

Indicted Parolee Pleads Insanity

MT. GILEAD — The mental condition of John Thomas Barnett 19, OSR parolee held in the Morrow county jail here on first-degree murder indictment will be determined within the next week. Common Pleas Judge Leland Rutherford ordered this action after Barnett entered two pleas of innocence to the charge.

The pleas, made Saturday morning in Judge Rutherford's court at Barnett's arraignment, included one by reason of insanity. Later yesterday Judge Rutherford appointed Dr. J. F. Bateman, superintendent of the Columbus State hospital, to examine Barnett and report to the court on the defendant's mental condition.

Barnett was indicted Tuesday in the slaying of his sister, Mrs. Mary Velma (Phyllis) Campbell, 21, in her farm tenant residence a mile south of Iberia on April 8. Leon McCarty, county prosecutor, said Barnett claimed the shooting followed Mrs. Campbell's threat to tell authorities Barnett planned to break his parole.

The innocence please were entered before Judge Leland Rutherford. Barnett is held without bond in the county jail here where he was taken following capture four hours after the slaying. A posse surrounded Barnett in the woods on the Sam McClarren farm near the scene of the tragedy.

Barnett was paroled March 23 from the Mansfield reformatory where he had been serving a sentence for auto theft. He was paroled to his brother-in-law, Kermit K. Campbell, and used Campbell's rifle in the shooting, Sheriff Tom England reported. The rifle was in his possession when captured.

Mrs. Campbell had been shot twice, through the arm and in the chest, by 22 caliber bullets. Her body was discovered on the closed porch of her home by her son, Dennis, 3.

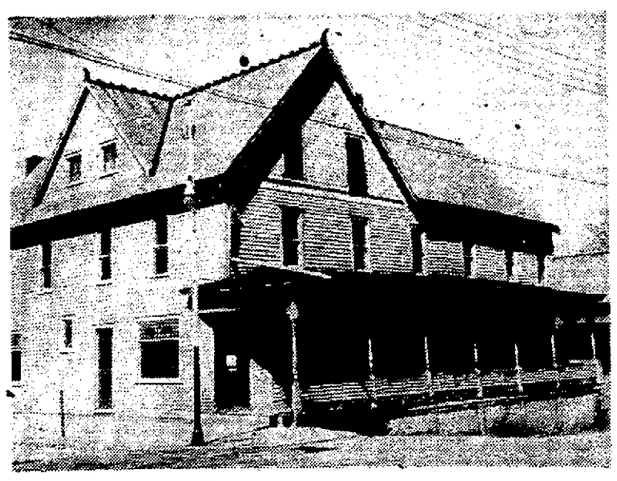
Plymouth Known as Paris When Inn Built

Razing of Landmark Begins

By BILL HERRING
News-Journal State Editor

PLYMOUTH — A local landmark, built on a lot owned by two of the original 16 settlers of this village when it was known as Paris, is being razed to make way for a modern super-service gasoline station. The structure is the Tourist Inn which has operated under several names since its construction around 1850.

Demolition was started last week by the Shelby contracting firm of Earl and James Sheely and is expected to require three weeks. Immediately after its clearance Sun Oil company workmen will start building the new gas station. The station will be operated by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dininger, owners of the Inn property and who operate a garage and filling station next door to the doomed structure.



TEARING-DOWN PROCESS BEGINS—The Tourist Inn, landmark in Plymouth, is being razed to make way for a modern filling station. The structure, constructed around 1850, has gone under several names including the village name changing from Paris to Plymouth.

The Tourist Inn was a three-story frame building with an attic and contained 18 rooms, two apartments and a lobby. The original building was put up by Carpenter Hackathorn but an east wing and third floor were added to make it a modern structure before the turn of the century.

* * *

The final guest, of the 18 registered at the time of the Inn's sale, was "Uncle Billy" Hatch, 91, a retired farmer. He stayed overnight a week ago Friday and moved out the following day. The gas, electricity and water were not turned off until he departed. Most of the roomers were men with the exception of the two families in the downstairs apartments.

In the days of Paris the Inn was the village's top hostelry and boasted a large dining room and kitchen which was incorporated into the apartments with the building's conversion to handle the tourist trade .There were 14 rooms on the second floor and four on the third floor. The attic was unused.

Checking over the ownership records reveals that Lot No. 39, upon which the Inn was constructed, was one of 18 lots owned by John Barney and Lemuel Powers when Paris was settled by 16 persons in 1815. The town was platted on May 17, 1825.

* * *

Louis J. and Samuel Davis next acquired title to the land and had the City Hotel constructed. Later it became known as the Bloom House and was sold March 28, 1877, to John and Barbara Davis. They sold it to George and Emeline Daniels on July 6, 1877, and the name was changed to the Daniels House.

Mrs. Daniels died Aug. 22, 1898, and it was not until June 12, 1899, that an administrator sold the property to Smith (Pete) Lofland. Amanda E. Derringer remodeled it and operated it as the Deringer Hotel until her death in 1922.

That marked the turning point in the structure's history as it changed from a hotel to rooming and apartment house. H. E. DeVore sold the structure to Mrs. Flora West on Dec. 19, 1937, and upon her death a son Glenn West, took over. He sold it April 1, 1946, to the Dingers who had purchased the garage next door in 1919.

The Diningers leased the operation of the Inn to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lambert. The Lamberts moved to Mansfield when the Inn was sold prior to razing activities.

Hothouse states that exclusive of the Stambaugh farm. Celeryville growers will put out 700 acres of celery and other vegetables. On his farm, John F. Trace Lacking In Search for 14-Year-Old Ashland Girl

Chief Asks Aid of All State Police

Kidnap Warrant Out For Ex-Convict

ASHLAND — Two weeks of unbroken effort by Ashland authorities has failed to shed any light on the mysterious disappearance April 1 of 14-year-old Sylvia Benepe, Ashland county children's home ward.

With a kidnapping warrant issued for Fred Horton, 30, ex-convict, who disappeared on the same day as the Benepe girl, Ashland police still are hopeful their efforts may return both the girl and Horton to Ashland.

Police Chief Harry Smith announced last week his department has dispatched letters to every state police headquarters in the United States asking for aid in finding the girl and Horton. The letter requests that description of the two be published in police bulletins and broadcast over state police radios in every state.

County Prosecutor Kenneth Nordstom is working closely with police since the girl was to have been star witness in the trial of her father, John Benepe, indicted on three statuatory charges.

Benepe, now being held in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond, will have to be released without trial by May 11 if the girl is not returned, according to legal requirements.

The Benepe girl was last seen leaving the county home school bus in front of Arthur Street school where she was in the sixth grade. That was on April 1, one day following the indictment of her father on two charges of incest and one of rape following complaint by the girl to Ashland police.

Horton, his wife and family disappeared the same day, taking all their personal belongings and their car but leaving behind their mortgaged furniture. Since the girl was known to have frequented the Horton home and police learned she had been seen out with Horton at least once, the kidnaping warrant was issued in the belief Horton was her abductor.

Since there is no evidence to indicate the girl was transported across a state line, the FBI has not been called into the case thus far.

BRAHMAN CATTLE IN RICHLAND — This year-old slant-eared Brahman bull calf and a 10-month-old Brahman heifer are being raised on the 104-acre farm of Paul Janes, Mansfield, R. D. 4, on the Mt. Zion road six miles from Mansfield and three miles north of Lucas in Richland county. The bull calf was obtained in Tennessee in November and the heifer came from a 110-000-acre swamp ranch in Florida on March 28. The bull calf is buff color and the heifer steel gray. The bull calf's hump already is showing. This Brahman marking is more noticeable on the bulls. They are of the Boss Indigus breed and are reported to stand heat better than domestic cattle, never bothered with flies and do good on rough pasture. Government researchers say cross-breeding improves the breed 30 per cent and Janes intends to do cross-breeding and build up his own small herd of Brahmans. Janes, a native of Chillicothe, moved to the Richland farm last fall from Tennessee. A Brahman bull calf brought with him died during the winter. The Brahmans are used for work purposes in India.

Federal Aid For Bucyrus Span Sought

Wider, Resurfaced Street Also Wanted

BUCYRUS — Efforts are being made to obtain federal funds for a new bridge on N. Sandusky avenue and for widening and resurfacing of that street within the city limits, Mayor R. L. Hertzer reported yesterday.

The mayor said he was of the opinion Bucyrus was eligible for federal "urban" funds, which the government has earmarked for Ohio municipal projects.

State engineers were here last week checking the project and studying the feasibility of combining the bridge and street improvement projects. Federal engineers will be here Thursday to make a survey, Mayor Hertzer reported.

The new combined project would cost the city about $20,000, representing 25 per cent of the estimated $80,000 cost of the project. Federal, state and county governments will share the remaining 75 per cent of the cost.

The mayor pointed out that Bucyrus can meet the minimum road width requirements of the "urban" aid program. Under this program no streets will be constructed or repaired unless the plans call for 44-foot width.

Vo-Ag Building Opened At New London High School

By HENRY PARNELL
N-J State Correspondent

NEW LONDON — The one story Vocational Agricultural building already is in use at the local high school. Opening the building eased classroom overcrowding and complied with the state fire marshal's directive of last fall to "clear the third floor" in the Elementary building.

By use of the new building, picture above, the agricultural department moved out of the upper floor to make way for children's classes.

The new structure, well lighted by plenty of windows and fluorescent lights, is 40 by 60 feet and is divided into two 30 by 40 feet classrooms and a furnace room.

The furnace room is of solid block construction, with an outside entrance only. The entire building is sealed with fireproof materials throughout.

Improvements in the grade building have been completed for some time with new electric wiring, more easily accessible fire escapes and widened stairways together with the removal of numerous other small fire hazards.

While this new building is amply large enough for present use, if occasion arises for additional rooms, minor changes can be made to accommodate one or two more classes.

The decision of the local court was upheld by the Third District Court of Appeals at Lima and the Ohio Supreme court declined to review the case.

Karel, indicted recently by the Crawford county grand jury for wilful destruction of property, admitted breaking a large store window in Galion. He told police he broke the window "to get a place to eat and sleep."

When hanging the family wash, hang each garment straight and, by its longest part to make it last longer, look better and easier to iron.

Ed Esker of Norwalk, advised R. H. Seiler here, the three village precincts A. B. C. will be eliminated, to be replaced by "North and South Divisions", with the N. Y. C. railroad which divides the town, as the separation point.

The two machines, at voting time will be installed in the high school gym, while the township voters will continue to vote in town. However, the law prescribes "no more than two machines in one place", so it is expected a third machine will be set up at a suitable location in the village.

EASTER MORN

by Evan B. Johnson

There's one morning when the worries
Of the dark months disappear.
When we hear Spring's voice awhispering
That the dawn of Easter's near.
As the world again awakens.
We will see it lay aside
All the sorrows of the Winter.
As it greets the Eastertide.
Fragrant buds will be in blossom.
Telling of the faith reborn
In the hearts of all believers.
In the dawn of Easter Morn.

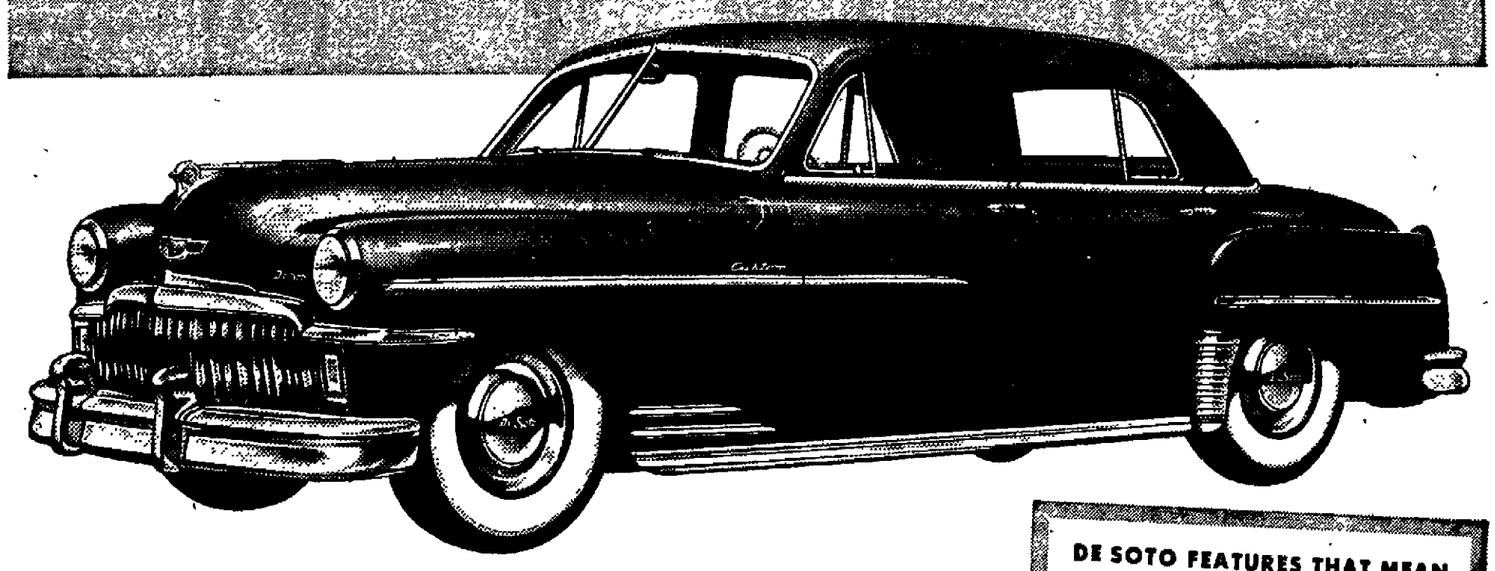
Examined the new DE SOTO? You won't know what's happened until you do!



"The Car Designed with YOU in Mind" is changing a lot of minds!

CROWDS of people have visited our showrooms since the first announcement of the new De Soto. It has been very interesting to watch their reactions.

First of all, of course, they walk all around the car and admire its smart, low lines and its sleek appearance. They tell us they like its looks because it is "modern but not modernistic."

But the big surprise comes when they open those wide doors and step inside. The roof does not hit their hats. There's lots of headroom. The steering wheel doesn't hit the driver's knees. And because the luxurious seats are chair high, you can see everything without craning your neck.

Get in. Front seat or back, they're both wider. There's more leg room for all passengers, too. And you get all this extra space without sacrifice of convenience, because the outside dimensions of the new De Soto are not increased. You can still park with ease. And you needn't rebuild that garage.

Before you make any decision about any new car, come in and let us show you De Soto's many great features including Tip-Toe Hydraulic Shift with Fluid Drive, that lets you drive without shifting. Compare this car with any other at any price . . . for beauty, comfort, safety and value. Then decide.

Tune in "HIT THE JACKPOT" every Tuesday night, all CBS stations

EASTER FINERY APPEARS IN SPITE OF WEATHER

By OLIVE GRESMER, News-Journal Society Editor

New clothes are as traditional as bunnies and eggs to children at Eastertime. The weather might be on the chilly side but on Easter out come the pretty pastel suits and coats and straw bonnets on the youngsters and on quite a few of the oldsters.

Trim little outfits with touches of white appear with flower trimmed straw hats, pretty cotton and silk frocks that look just like a colorful Easter egg.

News-Journal Photographer Bill Graham paid a visit to several of the younger generation to get a prevue of Easter togs. He found Mary Lou Janssen and sister, Edith Ann, trying on their new spring suits. These young ladies, in center left picture, are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Janssen, 355 Davis road. Center photo shows two more attractive young women, modeling their Easter frocks. Big sister, Dona, gives a little advice to Barbara. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sharp, 610 Russell road.

Lower row of pictures, left to right, show Mrs. Raymond Rice, 461 Lexington avenue, with her son, Bob, as they leave the First Presbyterian church; center, Miss Elaine Mash, 645 South Diamond street, and Buck Weekley, 279 Wood street, take their Easter stroll; lower right shows Sgt. and Mrs. Thomas Elder, R. D. 2, and children, Martha and Tommy, and Lt. and Mrs. Ernest Raithel and baby, 43 West Luther place, as they leave church services.

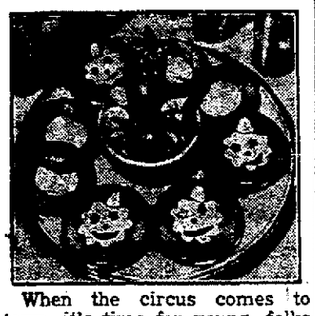
Does Your Child Go to Church? Is It Important?

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

I think we would agree that for one to have a strong resolve or to take a public pledge and then fail noticeably to carry through this resolve or fulfill this pledge tends to weaken one's moral and spiritual fiber, while fulfilling the resolve or pledge tends to strengthen it.

Around Easter time a great many children and young people become active members of a church. At a church service these young folks make public confession and pledge of a certain nature in accordance with the particular religious faith or sect they have espoused.



When the circus comes to town, it's time for young folks and old folks to celebrate. For does there live the person who doesn't thrill from the time the show rumbles in and the big top is set up, till only peanut shells and chewing gum papers remind you the circus has pulled up stakes and gone.

Since children and circuses are synonymous, why not give a matinee party for yours or a friend's small ones? After the performance, bring them home and serve these Funny-Man cookies which Best Foods' Nancy Holmes created for this special occasion.

FUNNY-MAN COOKIES

- 1 cup vitamized margarine, melted
- ¾ cup brown sugar
- 1½ cups molasses
- ½ cup sour milk
- 2 eggs, unbeaten
- 6 cups sifted flour
- 1 tablespoon ginger
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon soda

Combine margarine, brown sugar, molasses and sour milk. Beat in eggs, blend well. Sift together dry ingredients. Stir into molasses mixture, mix well. Shape into ball, wrap in waxed paper, chill. Roll out ¼ inch thick. Cut with large round cookie cutter. Remove centers from half the amount of large rounds, using a scalloped cookie cutter for some and a plain cutter for others. Place large cookies and center cutouts on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 375 degree F. oven about 12 minutes.

STRATEGIC TIMES

The days, weeks and months right after this experience are strategic times in the moral and spiritual growth of these youths. All else being equal, they grow most in these directions if they start off with strong purpose and enthusiasm. Obviously, their parents, church leaders and all the parishioners have a responsibility to these young persons.

In the first place, these children and youth should be made to feel very welcome among the church members, be encouraged to attend church services regularly and, whenever possible, be given something to do in the organizations and activities of the church. Why are not the teen-agers more often called into action as ushers? One might suppose the usual church board does not think youths can be trusted to show church comers to their seats or to take up the offering. Usually it's the baldheaded brethren who do these things. And how old must a person be to serve on a church board or committee? Where the "unbreakable" traditions of the church do not interfere, more emphasis on youth participation in the councils of the church might well be emphasized.

MEMBER OF CHURCH

But how faithfully the new young member of a church attends, rests pretty much with the home. Parents who themselves have attended church regularly and cultivated such fine family solidarity as to have won their children to go regularly to church with them, find it easier naturally, on this account, to win these children to continue church attendance after becoming members.

Important as it is that parents themselves attend church regularly, this good example alone might not suffice. There still needs to be a fine family relationship at home — at breakfast, lunch or dinner, around the fireside—at all busy times and leisure times. How parents and children feel and and act toward one another then are reflected in the degree of readiness in the children eight, twelve or fifteen to attend church with the family, whether or not they all sit together at church.

After the child or youth has espoused a religious faith and promised publicly to try to live accordingly, he needs encouragement from everyone possible, especially from his parents, to abide by his pledge.

Great is our temptation, after the child has become a member of a church, even of Scouts, to remind him when he has violated his public pledge. This rarely helps him.

Good Seasoning Important

The American housewife can be more creative about her cooking, claims the May Esquire feature, All in Good Season.

A dash of the right spice makes the difference between just plain cooking and the gourmet's delight.

"Do you want a real hamburger?" asks Author William Irwin. All you need is ground allspice, onion, and a chunk of lean beef. Grind the beef and onion fine. Then add the allspice, salt and pepper to taste, press into patties, and fry in butter. Cook for 30 seconds, then pour the sauce over mached potatoes.

Green peas can be made tastier by cooking with a few of the best and plumpest pods, declares Esquire. These are not intended to be eaten, but the addition does wonders to the flavor of the dish.

Cooking needn't be complicated. To disguise the most commonplace dish, all you need is a change of seasoning.

District To Meet Next Week

Several Districts of the First English Lutheran church will meet during the coming week for regular business sessions.

On Tuesday the Eighth District will meet at 2 o'clock in the Parish house. Those desiring to quilt are requested to attend in the morning and bring their lunch. A covered dish supper will be held by the members of the Fifth District on Tuesday at 6:30 o'clock. They also will hold their meeting in the parish house. Refreshments will be served at the close of the First District meeting on Wednesday. They will hold an all day session. The assembly room of the church will be the scene of the meeting of the Second District on Wednesday at 2 o'clock. On Thursday the Sixth District will hold a regular session in the parish house at 2 o'clock.

When pressing a full-skirted faille dress always press iron into the gathers, never across them, and on the wrong side of the fabric unless you use a pressing cloth.

Seekers Bible Club Elects Officers

The Seekers Bible club held election of officers at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Wachs, Millsborough road, with seven members present.

Mrs. Joe Bertka was elected president, Mrs. Ervin Remy, vice-president, Mrs. W. E. Schaaf, secretary-treasurer, Mr Harvey Bender, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. E. G. Pankow led the lesson study from Acts 24, chapter twenty-five. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bertka, 416 West Fourth street, April 27.

A quickly-made dessert can be prepared from packaged pie crust and mincemeat. Roll the dough thin, cut in squares, fill each with a little of the mincemeat, fold to form triangles and seal firmly with the tines of a fork. Prick the top of each turnover and bake in a hot oven.

New York's Top Milliners Choose Their Easter Bonnet

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK — (AP) — What kind of hats are New York's top milliners wearing in the Easter parade?

I started out, with a photographer in two, to call on six of the most famous gals who design headgear for the nation's upper crust.

Sally Victor, small and sprightly, obligingly posed in the hat of her personal choice, an airy and utterly springlike confection of white field daisies and lacy green stems. Said she:

"I picked little field daisies as a change from lilies of the valley, which are beautiful, but trite.

"You can wear practically any kind of hat you like this spring—it doesn't matter so much whether it's big or little, so long as it's becoming.

"But it is true that hats all have a crisp look this spring, lots of white is being used, and there's less trimming than in many years."

Florence Reichamn, who is strictly the ladylike type, was a study in blonde tones, her mutation mink scarf and her small straw bonnet blending perfectly with her own golden blonde hair. Said she:

"This is the first time I've ventured to wear a bonnet, usually considered the province of the very young. But this spring it seems right, and this particular one is the most popular hat in my collection.

Mary Goodfellow, a photogenic designer who is her own best model, chose a brown shantung straw in an oblique breton shape, simply trimmed with a white grosgrain binding and two small white birds. Said she:

"The general trend of the season is toward great simplicity, which silhouettes the all important thing. I think every woman will need two hats this spring—one to go with her suit, and pure silhouette, the other a neutral straw, to go with everything. It's a great season for neutals."

Lilly Dache, just back from Paris, chose for her own wear a simple white milan hat, untrimmed except for a manipulated spiral of matching straw. Said she:

"This is one spring you can go in for understatement in hats. I like sand and natural tones in rough straws and silks, handled with restraint."

Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, April 19

An exceptional opportunity for the demonstration of sound character, responsibility, fidelity and other characteristics of stability, good sense, patience and endurance, may be the outstanding culmination of this day. The riotous urge to "fly off the handle," rush headlong and turbulently into dangerous, rash and ungovernable actions, may result in physical dangers, injuries, accidents and a range of destructive and regrettable deeds, with hazards to life, limb and possessions.

Those whose birthday it is, may find themselves in a situation in which their affairs are benignly assured of a constructive, tangible and concrete demonstration of talents, skills, character and all 'round sterling qualities, for building a future, with stability, growth and security. This, by their own shrewd and eager efforts at working for basic and long-range developments, by diligence, perseverance, responsibility and exceptional "know how". Yet all this could be definitely and irrevocably ruined, undermined, defeated by some wild, intemperate and unreasoned rush to fly into "tantrums" — to even viciously "upset the apple cart." Irrational, emotional, vindictive or vengeful conduct could frustrate all hopes and efforts at salvaging worthwhile prospects.

A child born on this day may have great conflict of character, with calm, shrewd talents offset by temperament, fury, destructive drives.

She carried a white Bible, a gift from her parents, to which was attached a purple throated white orchid and white ribbon streamers. Tucked under the left cuff of her long pointed sleeve was a silk handerchief, a borrowed heirloom of her paternal grandmother Mullet.

Miss Janice Mullet was her sister's maid of honor and was wearing a yellow chiffon dress, styled similar to the lines of the bride's gown. With this she wore a head band of yellow veiling and white rosebuds. Her flowers were in a corsage of white dianthus.

Stanley Mullet, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Gordon and George Gamertsfelder, both brothers of the groom. They all wore white boutonnieres, as did the bridegroom.

Preceding the ceremony, a recital of wedding music was given by Mrs. Earl E. Miller, vocalist and Mrs. Dennis E. Getz, organist. Both Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Getz are aunts of the bride.

The marriage vows were read by the Rev. Earl E. Miller of Berlin, uncle of the bride.

Mrs. Mullet chose for her daughter's wedding, a brown silk floral print with a flower hat to match. Mrs. Gamertsfelder wore a grey ess with matching hat. Both mothers wore corsages of white dianthus, as did Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Getz.

Following the service the fifty relatives and friends were entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents. A three-tiered all white cake topped with a miniature bridal couple and a floral centerpiece of yellow daffodils, sr - drago , dianthus and acacia and crystal holders with yellow tapers decorated the dining table. Heirloom table service was used as the bride served her wedding cake, while classmates and friends assisted with other refreshments.

6th Graders To Present Festival

Present Program Early In May

"Music Through the Ages" will be the theme of the annual elementary music festival to be presented here on May 3 and 5, under the auspices of the Mansfield Music Study club.

Planned by Miss Mercedes Blue, elementary music supervisor in Mansfield public schools, the program will be presented entirely by sixth grade pupils, in the John Simpson auditorium at 7:30 p. m.

It will be given two nights this year because last year the crowd was too large for a one-night performance Pupils and teachers of the public school system will be able to hear the concert at the final rehearsal and so will not crowd the auditorium either night.

Each sixth grade in the city will present a special phase of the program. These phases will include:early music, nineteenth century songs, songs of today, songs of yester year, spirituals, music of the gay nineties, and music of World War 1. Babies Have Better Chance For Long Life

NEW YORK — (AP) — More than 60 per cent of boy babies born this year may expect to live to age 65, while almost 75 per cent of girl babies can expect that long a life, say statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company About half the girls may reach 75, and one in three of the boys.

The average white man who is now 65 can expect twelve and two-thirds more years of life, and the average white woman of 65 has about fourteen and one-half more years to go.

SPACE SAVED

Valuable closet and bedroom space will be saved if a tier of drawers, 3 feet high, the width of the closet and depth of the closet, is built into the closet Jackets and other short garments are hung above the drawers, long garments at either sid.

INDUSTRY—Looking east from the Richland county courthouse, one sees a portion of Mansfield's industrial area, where thousands of persons are employed Around the plants are residential areas which for many years have been gradually shrinking in size as the space needs of business and industry increased Products made in Mansfield are nationally known, and a large portion of these are manufactured in the area shown in this picture. The photograph was one of three taken by James Switzer, News-Journal photographer, from the courthouse roof.

Eire Gains Full Freedom After Long Conflict

BY MICHAEL ROONEY

DUBLIN — (AP) — Easter Monday, 1916, is a bright and sunny day in Dublin. The city is enjoying the Easter break in routine.

There is football and sports and racing at fashionable Fairyhouse. The streets have a holiday air. People are dressed in their Sunday best.

There are other people about, too. Small bands of young men dressed in green with Anzac-type slouch hats march about with a purposeful air. Dublin is tolerant; more than a trifle contemptuous.

"Och, them fellows! aren't they forever at 'heir marching! if 'tis fighting they want, why are they not out in France with the Dublin fusiliers?"

A great many of Dublin's men are fighting in France and their womenfolk taunt the green-clad boys as they march along.

At the general postoffice in O'Connell street there is a stir. Rumors sweep through the city center. The lads in the green uniforms are in the big block of postoffice buildings and they are armed. They are barricading the doors and windows and the muzzles of their rifles peep through hastily made firing points. There are no jeers now. Nothing but an awed silence that settles over the city.

It is noon. A group of uniformed men march from the front door of the postoffice. Their leader is a slight pale man with dark hair and dreamy eyes. He is Patrick Pearse, 37, school teacher, poet— and commandant general of 1,500 Irishmen men about to throw down an armed challenge to Britain.

Second in command is burly 46-year-old James Connally who has spent seven years as a labor organizer in the United States and now is leading his own citizen army in the fight.

Oldest of the group is Thomas Clarke, an emissary of America's clan Na Gael. Sixteen of his 58 years have been spent in British prisons. Exultant at the chance of striking another blow at his lifelong enemies is Major John MacBride who led an Irish brigade against the British in the Boer war.

Pearse reads from a document he holds in his hand: "We hereby proclaim the Irish republic as a sovereign independent state...."

The final words of the historic document are punctuated by rifle volleys as Republican outposts go into action against the British soldiers.

Thus, on April 24, 1916, the Irish republic was proclaimed in arms. Ten days later Pearse was dead and 14 of his comrades were waiting their turn before the British firing squads. Thousands were dead and wounded. Many more thousands were prisoners.

The general postoffice was a smoking ruin. Much of O'Connell street, Dublin's finest thoroughfare was burned and blasted rubble. Raids, arrests, and terror were the order of the day.

Two newspaper men were brought to Portobello barracks and shot out of hand.

De Witt MacKenzie, covering the insurrection for the Associated Press, almost suffered a like fate. Taken for violating martial law and dragged into Portobello, he had to talk fast and convincingly.

The adventure in arms seemed to have been a bloody failure. But there was one significant change. The people no longer were contemptuous. The death sentence had touched them to the quick. Ireland burned with patriotism and a new desire to be free.

33 YEARS LATER

This Easter Monday, before the rebuilt general postoffice in Dublin, the proclamation of the Irish republic will be read again and troops of the Irish republic, including the regiment of Pearse will salute the tattered tricolor of green, white and gold that Pearse hoisted over the building in 1916. What then was a gesture of nationality and defiance will now become a fact.

"We are about to attempt impossible things, wrote Pearse in 1916, "for we know that it is only impossible things that are worth doing".

Monday the impossible happens. After 780 years of struggle the last link with Britain will be broken in three-quarters of this green island.

The other one-quarter is the one fly in the ointment. It will dampen the fervor of Irish rejoicing Monday.

Flags may fly in Dublin and soldiers march and drums beat, but the celebration will be tempered by the reflection that the republic proclaimed in 1916 was a republic for all Ireland and that now 33 years after, six counties of Ulster are still part of the United Kingdom.

For the south of Ireland almost eight centuries of struggle are over.

If Dermot MacMorrough, King of Leinster, had not taken a fancy to the wife of a neighboring Irish chief, the English might never have come.

Dermot seized the lady by force and for his crime he was banished. He went to England to seek the help of Henry 11 and promised rich spoil and an Irish kingdom to the monarch who then ruled England and most of France.

In May 1169 the first of the "iron lords of Normandy" landed in a little bay in Wexford. Like the conquistadores who overran Mexico, they were few, but versed in the arts of war. They were well-armed and perfectly disciplined.

An old Irish poem summed it up succinctly: "Fine linen shirts on the race of conn, The foreigners one mass of iron".

The iron turned the scales every time again and again in the centuries that followed. The Irish seemed on the point of driving their enemies into the sea, but always the English came back. Superior arms and equipment— aided by dissensions among the native chiefs— turned the fortunes in favor of the invaders.

It took the English over 500 years to beat down the last of the resistance. It was not until 1607 that the power of the great Gaelic chiefs finally was broken. But the spirit of the people never was broken despite death and torture, deportation and dispossession.

At frequent periods Irishmen were found ready to carry on the fight. The proclamation of 1916 referred to that almost unbroken struggle.

"In every generation," it declared, "the Irish people have asserted their right to national freedom and sovereignty: six times during the past 300 years they asserted it in arms".

The difference in 1916 was that whereas other ebellions had been crushed and had been followed by despair, that revolt gave birth to a national movement that swept the country.

In 1921 southern Ireland and Britain signed the Anglo-Irish treaty, which gave Ireland the status of the Dominion of Canada with liberty to Ulster to stay outside this arrangement -which Ulster did. The new dominion was called the Irish Free State. In 1937 a new constitution was adopted for the Irish Free state and under this the former name of Ireland (Eire) was restored.

But the Irish republican movement of 1916-1921 soon was sundered in the bitterness of the civil war that followed the setting up of the free state and the departure of the British. Some were for the new state. Some wanted a republic.

Comrades in arms became bitter enemies. Fathers were divided against their sons. Brother fought brother. Irish firing squads trained their rifles on fellow Irishmen.

Execution and reprisal followed one another in a grim circle of hate. The Republicans were defeated and the new state rose on the ruins.

The bitterness of those days has not quite gone but it is going. With Monday's declaration of the republic a new chapter in the history of Ireland opens. It is, perhaps, a symbol of the new spirit that the man who is popularly credited with placing the coping stone upon the constitutional structure of the republic is a man of many loyalties.

Sean MacBride, Minister for External affairs in the interparty government of Premier John Costello, is the son of the Major John MacBride who stood with Pearse at the general postoffice on Easter Monday, 1916, and who followed him to death before a firing squad.

As a boy of 16, Sean MacBride fought against the British in the war of independence and alongside DeValera and his Republicans in the civil war. When De Valera, defeated in arms turned to constitutional methods and entered the Dail, MacBride remained outside, the acknowledged leader of militant republicanism.

Now he is a minister in the government that ousted De Valera's Fianna Fail in the general election of February 1948 and it is no secret that it was his voice and counsel that determined the Costello cabinet to plump for a republic in an effort to end Ireland's internal political dissension.

On a fortnight's stay in the United States, MacBride will be in Chicago Monday and will not hear the proclamation of the Irish republic read at the Dublin postoffice. He will doubtless reflect, however, as all southern Irishmen at home will reflect that here is something that all have helped in one way or another to create and in which all the people may take a proper pride.

The true merit of this declaration of a republic for 26 counties is not so much that it signalizes complete freedom the British after all have been gone since 1921— but that it closes the door on past dissension and enables Ireland to face with a new spirit the problems of the future.

Daredevil Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Red-bearded Robert L. Niles, defying a judge's warning, Friday became the second person officially to survive a plunge from Golden Gate bridge.

But his jump put the 22-year-old Oakland, Calif., stunt man in trouble with the law for the second time in less than a month.

Police arrested him shortly after he climbed aboard a cruiser. He was booked on charges of disturbing the peace and committing a public nuisance and lodged in the city jail. Later Frank Vogel, San Francisco dealer, posted $125 bail and Niles was released.

Niles was stopped by police before he tried a similar jump March 26. At that time he promised Municipal Judge William T. Sweigert he would never try again. He spent ten days in jail for disturbing the peace.

The only person known positively to survive a free fall from the bridge was Cornelia Van Ireland, 22, who went over the rail in 1941 "on a sudden impulse." Her back was broken, but she recovered.

"Anyone Can Do It" Says 78 Year Old Professor

A university professor of 78 hit the nail on the head recently, when we were discussing the problem of providing financial security for later years.

"Mr. Brandenburg," he said, "I never earned a large salary. Yet, today, I'm enjoying a comfortable retirement income, guaranteed as long as I live. And anyone can accomplish the same thing by following a simple plan like yours." Now this column doesn't often seek direct response from its readers. But if you've been saying to yourself: "I wish I had a plan, within my means, that would enable me to ease up some day, a plan to which I could add from time to time," then let me ask you—yes, urge you—to send for a copy of the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income catalog.

It describes 14 different plans and shows how you can retire at 55, 60, 65, or 70. It outlines joint plans for husbands and wives — plans for professional men — for business women — and for many others.

Just drop me a line, and you'll receive the catalog by return mail — without cost or obligation. Send for it today. It may mean a great deal to you in the years ahead.

California's Fruit Losses In Millions

Frost Damaged Third of Crop

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — No matter what you may have read, southern California's winter wasn't its worst. Just its most spectacular. The records agree crop damage was greater in two others.

The freezing weather—plus snow and ice and high winds—might not seem so bad to folks up north, but when the mercury slides near 30 degrees that means the difference between success and failure to an orange rancher.

The California Fruit Growers exchange, which markets about 75 per cent of the state's citrus, estimates frost damages a third of the crop. The exchange breaks the losses down this way:

Valencia oranges 32 per cent, navel oranges 27 per cent, lemons 32 per cent, and grapefruit 47 per cent.

California produces more than half of the nation's oranges, 99 per cent of its lemons and nine per cent of its grapefruit.

Early damage estimates ran as high as 40 per cent and $60,000,000. The exchange hesitates to put a price tag on the freeze. It points out that although last year's harvest was worth $172,000,000 F.O.B. California, its value this year will not necessarily decrease one third.

Growers will sell more of their fruit fresh this year instead of to by-products concerns. Fresh fruit can be sold for much more than fruit sold for by-products. Even damaged fruit is not a total loss. It can be processed and sold as cattle fodder.

There should be no shortages, the exchange says. Enough fruit will be diverted from by-products to supply consumer demands.

Although citrus prices jumped sharply after the first January freeze, two months later they had snapped back to normal. The exchange predicts they will stay there.

Executive Uses His Plane For Business and Pleasure

By BOB SCHWEITZ

At 8 a. m. one day recently H. E. Rupp, vice-president of the Gorman-Rupp company, went to his office, set up the day's work for his staff and left. Two hours and 41 minutes later he thought of something he forgot to tell them so he called the Mansfield plant on the phone—from La Guardia field. Rupp had flown to New York that morning in his grey and maroon Beechcraft Bonanza.

After flying for two years and for 300 pilot hours, that sort of experience is ordinary for the local businessman who uses his plane for pleasure as well as business.

Last winter he flew to Florida an 1,100 mile trip in only eight flying hours. While there he made hops to Clearwater, Orlando Miami, and Ft. Lauderdale.

The Rupp family, and there are seven of them, Mr and Mrs. Rupp, two daughters and three sons, have all been flying with Rupp since he bought his plane two years ago.

The youngest, Mickey, 13, who goes to Johnny Appleseed Junior high school, is the only member of the family who is not enthusiastic about flying. His father reports the boy finds more delight in speeding along on his "Whizzer" bike.

But Mrs. Rupp likes flying and Rupp says it won't be long until he has her talked into taking pilot lessons. The Rupp's live at 787 Woodhill road.

Square Dance Now Becoming National Fad of Japanese

SAPPORO, JAPAN — (AP) — From the hills of atom-bombed Nagasaki to the snow-clad peaks of Hokkaido, the cry of "swing your partners" rings out as Japan takes to the square dance.

Responsible for the vogue is Winfield Niblo of Denver. An employe of the civil information and education section of the military government, he teaches square dancing as a sideline, just for fun. The Japanese love it.

For the last couple of years the pastime has been restricted to the southern islands, where Niblo formerly was stationed, but now he has brought it to this northern territory.

On a recent week end Princes Takamatsu and Mikasa, brothers of the emperor, were persuaded to try it. In Sapporo for a ski meet, they visited the municipal auditorium where Niblo and Agnes Morris of Philadelphia were instructing 1,000 Japanese.

"Four young leadies provided expert instruction for the princes and were bothered not at all by their royal partners," said Niblo. "The girls pushed them this way and pulled them that way with reckless abandon."

With the six-piece city hall band turning our recognizable facsimiles of "Little Brown Jug," "O Susanna," and "Nellie Gray," the princes won what the local paper called "thunderous clapping of hands" from the spectators.

"The princes breezed through the Virginia reel like a couple of native Virginians," said Niblo.

Prince Takamatsu said afterward he liked the "friendly atmosphere" at the dance, while Mikasa said he'd like for his family to join the fun some time.

Expect '49 Baseball Season to Be Greatest Ever

Tyger Thinclads Take 2nd In Relays

4 Teams Play Ball Monday

NEW YORK—(AP)—Another big league baseball season opens Monday, and there is reason to suspect it will be one of the greatest ever, both competitively and in money poured through the ticket windows.

For more than a month fans have been breaking down the gates to watch exhibition games in the south and west, and club treasuries are groaning with the proceeds of record advance sales. The magnates are walking around in a rosy financial dream.

TWO TILTS MONDAY

The Washington Senators, as usual, will jump the gun in the American league race in a game against the Philadelphia Athletics, at Washington. President Truman has agreed to toss out the first ball, but he won't say with which hand.

The rival National league also has booked a Monday solo in Boston between its champion Braves and the Philadelphia Phillies.

Tuesday the firing will become general in eight cities. In the American league, the world champion Cleveland Indians are scheduled to tee off against the wistful St. Louis Browns, in St. Louis. Washington plays at New York. Chicago at Detroit, and Boston at Philadelphia.

In the National league it will be Philadelphia at Boston, two games; New York at Brooklyn, Pittsburgh at Chicago, and St. Louis at Cincinnati. The forecast is for band music, flag pole marches and capacity crowds in every park.

INTEREST HIGH

The club owners themselves don't quite know what to make of the tremendous interest in the game this spring, but they no longer can doubt that it is a fact.

Only a few months ago most of them were resigned, privately, to a slump in '49 attendance. They thought they foresaw a tightening-up of pleasure money. Now at least half a dozen magnates say the signs point to new all-time home attendance marks.

Some of them think maybe television — which they once regarded as a potential menace — has helped arouse new interest in the game.

Of the two pennant races getting under way, that in the National league has the experts only slightly more confused than the prospective two-team struggle between Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox in the American.

Four clubs are given a chance to win in the National — Boston, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh and St.

Springfield Victor By Only 4½ Points

By FRED THARP, News-Journal Sports Editor

SPRINGFIELD—Mansfield Senior high school finished out of the track "winner's circle" for the first time in 1949 yesterday at the first annual Springfield Invitational relays.

Victors in three straight dual meets, the Tyger trackmen piled up 60 points to finish close behind Springfield's host Wildcats. Springfield, Ohio's ranking track power, picked up 64½ tallies while Columbus Central completed the big three with 42.

Springfield's strength in the field events paid off as the Tygers were the aces in the running portion of the affair. After the morning events, Springfield led with 26 points while Mansfield had only 15. In the afternoon, Senior High picked up 45 tallies to 38½ for Springfield.

The wintry weather conditions held down times in many events but the jumpers and throwes were hindered the most. All of them had trouble with distances and heights which usually come in the snap department. Only one field record was broken and none of the other marks were remotely threatened.

Showing of the Springfield and Mansfield aggregations put them near the top of the list of favorites for the 18th annual Mansfield Relays Friday and Saturday. Dayton Dunbar, Cleveland East Tech and possibly Columbus Central are the other schools figured to have a chance. Dunbar, defending state champion, is reported "loaded" again.

Springfield won the 1948 Mansfield Relays with Dunbar and Columbus Central tying for second.

Here's how the teams finished in the Springfield Relays yesterday:

Springfield, 64½; Mansfield, 60; Columbus Central, 42½; Dayton Fairview, 24; Hamilton, 13; Marietta, 13; Upper Arlington, 10; Piqua, 9; Dayton Wilbur Wright, 6½, Columbus South, 6; Troy, 6; Greenville, 1; New Carlisle, ½.

WIN SIX EVENTS

Five first places and a tie for a sixth gave Springfield its victory margin. Mansfield gained three firsts and a tie for one, while Columbus Central won three events. Other winners came from Troy, Hamilton, Marietta and Dayton Fairview.

A. C. Jenkins was the big "hardware" man for Mansfield. He picked up individual trophies for firsts in both hurdle events and gained a medal for a third in the shuttle hurdle relay. The Tyger 880-yard quartet copped its race handily while Don Cline knotted Charles Johnson of Springfield for the pole vault trophy.

The Tygers placed in 13 of the 16 events, being shut out only in the discus, two-mile relay and half-mile. Thirteen members of the 21-man Mansfield squad broke into the scoring column, three seniors, five juniors and five sophomores.

Jenkins was the meet's third leading scorer with 12¾ points. Gene Stevenson of Springfield had 14½ and Jim Bailey, Hamilton's all-Ohio football player and basketball star, connected for 13.

In fact, Bailey was Hamilton's entire track team. Twenty men represented the Big Blue, but most of them finished far out of the money. Which must be strange for Hamilton, The Big Blue claim the 1948 Ohio high school grid championship and actually copped the state cage title. Bailey was third in the 100, second in the shot put and won the high jump — an odd assortment of events.

TWO IN HURDLES

Jenkins' twin timber victories were over Stevenson, one of the state's better hurdlers. Stevenson had a fifth and a third in the Mansfield relays last year and was defending state broad jump champion. However, he was third in the low sticks as Jenkins nipped Bill Hairston of Columbus Central in a near dead-heat.

Little Tommy Tucker, Mansfield's top point gatherer, was beaten for the first time this season. He ran second in both the 100 and 220 and tied for third in the broad jump. Central's Bill Smith won both sprints. Smith won points in the "quickies" at Columbus in 1948 and is defending Mansfield relays champion in the 220.

A spill in the 480-yard shuttle relay kept the Tygers away from another first. Sonny Wadlington, running the first leg, hit a hurdle and sprawled in the cinders. He got up to take fifth in the six-team field. Clarence Bailey, Ophinel Davis and Jenkins pulled the team up to third as Springfield set a new record of 58.8.

Springfield and Mansfield received trophies while individuals were awarded with trophies, medals and ribbons. The event was sponsored by the Springfield Booster club.

Stuff About Harry And Sport Shorts On Cold Activity

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

SPRINGFIELD—Mansfield Senior high school track and field teams have finished out of the money only three times in the last 22 years—in district scholastic competition. . . . The span of 22 years is the duration of Harry "the man in the corduroy coat" Mehock's coaching career, all of which has been spent as the Tyger thinclad chieftain. . . . In the 22 district meets, the Tygers have been first 11 times and second eight. . . . Misses were in 1927, 1938 and 1941. . . . Since 1941, Senior high has won every district championship. . . . Only in 1945 did the Tygers go all the way and win the state championship. . . . Many times the Bengal cinderpath artists have played a bridesmaid's role in the state meet and the big relays. . . . Senior high students have also copped seven relays titles to give Mehock-coached teams 19 championships and dozens of seconds. . . . Mehock came to Mansfield fresh off the Illinois campus where he was some shakes as a 440-yard man. . . . He organized the Mansfield Relays which still rate as the BEST. . . . His coaching has produced eight unbeaten seasons (dual and triangular competition) and the present Tygers are working on a ninth. . . . The state championship team won six and tied one during the regular season. . . . That tie was at the hands of Columbus East, 59 to 59. . . . Only two teams in the 22 years finished with losing records, 1938 and 1940, and the latter managed a district runner-up spot. . . . Over the 22 years, Mehock has seen his teams win 104 and lose 22 dual and triangular jobs. . . . Since the district victory string has been going on the Tygers have copped 39 and lost six.

IT WAS PLENTY frigid enough for Eskimos here yesterday but thinclads from some 14 schools staged a pretty interesting "cold" war. . . . Several of the youngsters engaged in impromptu snow-ball fights while waiting for the morning preliminaries. . . . One official was bundled with a heavy wool shirt, two sweaters, a leather jacket and an overcoat. . . . He said he was still cold. . . . Four schools didn't show up—possibly because they mislaid their snow shoes. . . . The quartet of unhardy track teams were: Cincinnati Vocational, Newark, Lima Central and Xenia Central. . . . The better boys ran just hard enough in the morning to qualify for the finals. . . . They didn't want to risk pulled muscles. . . . However, Little Tommy Tucker won all of his heats in the 100 and 220 while A. C. Jenkins notched one first and a second while Harry Carr was beaten by only six inches in his 220 start. . . . Tucker didn't bother to remove his sweat pants in winning his 220 effort by 10 yards.

★ ★ ★

THE SUN POKED through several times late in the afternoon and when the meet ended the weather resembled that of a nippy March day. . . . Approximately 500 fans braved the sub-freezing temperatures at the start of the finals. . . . All field events were run off in the morning to keep the athletes from having to spend the whole day working with the weights, jumps and pole vault. . . . John Remsberg one of the meet managers said that next year the Springfield track and field show would be moved back later in the season. . . . Which means that the Mansfield Relays will be the first independent Relays on tap once again. . . . Mehock and Paul Snyder, Tyger track coaches, congratulated themselves at odd intervals that the Mansfield Relays were not on the docket for yesterday. . . . Original bookings had the Mansfield event listed for April 15 and 16 but a switch was worked with Springfield several months ago. . . . Now they have their fingers crossed that good weather will greet Mansfield track fans Friday and Saturday. . . . We ran into a conversation with Ed Barker, secretary of the track coaches association, who acted as referee and starter. . . . Ed came up with a novel idea to revolutionize state track meets. . . . The present system sends just individual winners from district meets to the state competition. . . . Ed thinks that the district winners and runner-ups should compete as teams at Columbus. . . . This idea would actually show which school has a better all-around team while now one individual can almost win a state team title. . . . Witness last year when Lancaster's Gene Cole took three firsts and his 18-point total was just five points off the winning team's mark.

4 Youngsters Sign for 8th Coaster Race

Four more Mansfield youngsters have entered the eighth annual News-Journal Soap Box Derby which is scheduled to be run off in July.

Latest entries are: Fred Hissong, 13, 238 Rhine street; Thomas Jordan, 118 Columbia avenue; Bertley Mahan, 12, 475 South Main and Bob Johnson, 12, 788 Lexington avenue.

All it takes to enter the Soap Box Derby is to appear at one of the seven registration centers in the company of a parent. Of course, youngsters must be between 11 and 15 years of age and reside in the Mansfield area.

Winner of the Mansfield Derby will get an all-expenses paid trip to the national finals in Akron Aug. 14. There he will compete against a field of 150 champions from other cities. Dick Jordan, 1948 Mansfield champion, took 13th place in the nationals.

Registration centers are: Brandenburg Chevrolet, co-sponsor of the Derby with The News-Journal; Galion Motor sales; Crawford Motor sales, Crestline; Gump Motor sales, Shelby; Shell stations in Bellville and Ontario and the Plymouth Advertiser.

Attendance Mark Set By Indians

NEW YORK — (AP) — Only 8,812 fans saw the Cleveland Indian-New York Giant exhibition game at the Polo grounds today, but the Indians still easily eclipsed the spring exhibition attendance mark of 225,000 set by the Yankees in 1946.

For 34 games, the Tribe now has packed in 233,280 spectators. A final game with the Giants will be played here tomorrow.

Giants Come From Behind To Outslug Indians, 10-9

NEW YORK —(AP)— The New York Giants outslugged the Cleveland Indians in an exhibition game yesterday, 10-9, but they had to overcome a five run deficit in the last three innings to turn the trick.

Each team scored four runs in the first inning. The Giants' cluster was due mainly to the generosity of Satchel Paige, who started for the Indians and promptly walked the first four batters to face him.

Manager Lou Boudreau yanked Paige, but Mike Garcia, who succeeded him, gave up a couple of singles.

GORDON HOMERS

The score stayed deadlocked only until the third when the Indians notched one more. In the fifth, they went three-up when Joe Gordon whacked a home run with one on.

Two singles, a walk and a double by Boudreau accounted for two more Tribe runs in the seventh.

The Giants made up three of the tallies in their half of the seventh with three singles and Jack Lohrke's double. Don Mueller, a pinch-hitter, drove in two of the three Gignt runs in the eighth with a home run off Steve Gromek.

Capot's Kentucky Derby Stock Soars With Easy Victory

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. —(AP)—Capot turned on the power in the final strides yesterday to defeat Slam Bang by a slim nose margin in one of the tightest finishes in the 28-year-old history of the Chesapeake stakes.

The victory definitely put Capot among those to think about for the Kentucky Derby.

The three-year-old star of the Greentree stable needed all of the riding skill of Jockey Ted Atkinson to make the grade in the Chesapeake. But he did it and gave a strong boost to his derby chances.

The crowd of 16,477 had established Capot as the 7 to 10 favorite and most of them held their breaths until the photograph of the finish was processed.

Slam Bang, owned by C. Mahlon Kline, was a length and a half in front of King Ranch's Swap Out, while S. W. Labrot's Taran was fourth, another two lengths in the rear.

Capot toured the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:45 1-5, three-fifths of a second faster than last year when Citation took this same stakes in a romp.

Locke, Sarazen And Co. Shoot Two-Under 67

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. —(AP)— A putting star who admitted his putting was off of late and one of golf's greatest players put on a brilliant exhibition here yesterday to lead Captain Bob Hamilton's four-man team to victory in the feature attraction of the $10,000 Cavalier specialists tournament.

The putter was Bobby Locke, of Johannesburg, South Africa.

Gene Sarazen, of Germantown, N. Y., was spectacular with his terrific short iron shots.

Hamilton, of Andover, Md., was the teams' driver. Jimmy Demaret, of Ojai, Calif., came up with some fancy long iron shots. The four of them moved around the par 69, 6,065-yard layout of the Cavalier yacht and country club in two-under-par 67.

In a way, the Hamilton team was a bit fortunate at that, for had Captain Ellsworth Vines' crew come through on the short par three holes, it would have won handily. As it was, Vines' quartet finished in one-under 68.

Association Set for Best Year

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Bruce Dudley leaned back in his presidential chair today and beamed a smile of satisfaction at prospects in the American Association.

The league opens its 49th baseball season Tuesday and Dudley said there never has been a time when the association clubs appeared in sounder condition than they are today.

This will be the first season at the helm of the circuit for Dudley, former president of the Louisville Colonels and erstwhile sports editor.

Exactly half of the eight clubs will be presenting new managers this season. The newcomers are Fred Walters of Louisville, Eddie Mayo who recently supplanted the ailing Harry Liebold at Toledo, Tommy Heath at Minneapolis and Bill Skiff at Kansas City.

The holdovers include Al Lopez, who won the Association pennant at Indianapolis last season; Walter Alston who managed St. Paul into the playoff championship in 1948; Hal Anderson at Columbus and Nick Cullop at Milwaukee.

Tuesday's opening games: Minneapolis at Louisville, St. Paul at Columbus, Kansas City at Indianapolis and Milwaukee at Toledo. All are night games except the affair at Toledo.

Set Date to Organize League

For the first time in many years, Richland county is to have a semi-pro baseball league this summer.

Definite decision to form the league was reached yesterday by Mansfield city recreation director Stan Kamen after he had been contacted by five teams wishing to join such a circuit. Kamen, who had been authorized to sound out interest in a county league by the Mansfield athletic commission, said that the league will be formed at a meeting in the recreation offices at 7:30 p. m. April 26.

Three Mansfield nines will compete in the loop against "town" teams from other parts of the county. At least eight teams are hoped for, but the league will operate even if it must go with six.

Having already indicated an interest are Shelby Merchants, Ontario Merchants, Mansfield DAV, T. and E Tavern and Hawks. Invitations to attend the meeting have also been sent to Lucas, Shiloh, Butler, Bellville and Plymouth. Any other team in the county wanting "in" will be welcomed at the meeting.

The league will likely start operation sometime in May.

School Spring Sports Swing Into High Gear

Charlie Stine: Learns Of Night Golf Club

Of the some 15 or 20 mimeographed news releases that pass across the sports desk every day, most are facts and figures from colleges and professional teams which end up in file 13. However, last week we came upon a full-page clipping from a Springfield, Mass., paper which described something we won't be satisfied until we see.

It was a night golf course which is no longer just plans, but is in actual operation, having opened only this spring.

STINE

Furthermore though it is a par 34 layout with regulation distances, the whole thing can be played without walking more than 500 yards. And you don't have to chase your ball.

Nine different driving tees are used but there is only one fairway. Lines and flags on the fairway indicate whether or not the player has driven 200 yards, the required distance. If not he adds a penalty stroke. If he has, he merely walks to the approach tee for the first hole. Tees are scattered at various scenic spots and knolls about the layout.

Then he takes his iron and whacks away for the approach green (there is only one) which is a round pool of water the size of an ordinary green. If he hits into the pool on he goes to the No. 1 putting green (which is right beside the No. 1 approach tee, drops a ball at a designated spot on the green, and putts.

Balls, so the article says, are furnished by the course and are picked up later just as at a driving range.

There are long holes and short holes, the difference in range being made in the distance the approach tee is from the pool (target green). Two holes on the nine-hole course require no drive, but merely a long iron, hence an iron and two putts for a par three.

The whole thing sounds fantastic, we admit, but is in actual operation and patented under the name "East Longmeadow Country club," in Springfield. If it actually works, it is possible that some day such courses might spring up everywhere since cost is not too high except for lighting and even that doesn't appear to be much more than that of a modern baseball park.

Just in case some of you are impatient and don't want to wait until next fall to see how the major league races come out, we might as well tell you now. It's a sure thing and has been all along that they'll end up this way:

Baseball, Golf, Net Teams Open

Mansfield Senior high school's four-pronged spring sports program will swing into high this week as the baseball, tennis, and golf squads all open their season. Topping the whole thing off will be the biggest scholastic sports event of the year—the Mansfield Relays—on Saturday.

Coach Mile Byelene's diamond campaigners attempted to open their season twice against Madison last week, but were stopped both times by foul weather. Now it appears the rivals will have to wait a while longer as both have a pair of tilts carded this week.

OPEN WEDNESDAY

The Tygers open on the road Wednesday when they go to Barberton for a 4 p. m. contest. Friday they begin their home season against Marion at Liberty park.

Byelene has called a practice session for his team at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the high school and will work hard then and Tuesday to put on the finishing touches.

Madison is host to Ashland Tuesday afternoon and then attempts to avenge an early-season loss Friday at Galion.

Coach Fred Staub's Senior High tennis team opens its season Friday at Fremont, while the golf squad is to meet Norwalk at 9 a. m. Saturday at Westbrook.

The golf match will be 18 holes with four boys from each school competing in strict match play.

Qualifiers for the Bengal squad have been going on for some time under the direction of Golf Coach V. H. Oberlander and will be finished early this week. Oberlander yesterday listed the eight low boys in the qualifiers as Larry Inscore, Jim Hager, Steve Demyan, Tony Taddeo, Mike Oliveri, Maynard "Bud" Baith, Ed Percy and Ed Doklovich. Six of the boys will be kept. All except Hager, Dokolvioh and Baith are lettermen from last year.

Best score turned in so far was an 82 by Inscore, two-time Westbrook caddy champion. Hager was caddy tournament runner-up last year and is a promising half-miler with the Tyger track team.

The Senior high track team will be favored to notch its fourth straight dual meet victory Tuesday afternoon at Newark.

Hall Defeats Grapple Foe

Stacy Hall defeated Whitey Whittler in a grudge wrestling match before a big crowd at the armory last night.

Whittler had won three straight matches in the Mansfield ring, taking over Hall twice.

Buzz Jones and Wild Bill Zimovich teamed up to defeat George Strickland and Walter Achue in a tag-team match. The opener between Pancho Valentino and Angel Martinelli went to a draw.

O'Brien, Stephens Homer To Lead Bosox to 5-2 Win

BOSTON —(AP)— Homers by Tom O'Brien and Junior Stephens, the former's with a mate aboard, settled the Boston Red Sox 5-2 win over the Braves yesterday before a chilled 17,246 crowd at Fenway Park.

That decision enabled the American leaguers to take a three games to two lead in the seven-game intra-city series.

City Softball Roster Reaches 30 Teams

Thirty teams have signed up for play in the city softball leagues thus far, City Recreation director Stan Kamen announced yesterday.

Practice times have been set up beginning tomorrow and next week Kamen plans to schedule two practice games a week of each team until the beginning of league play May 16.

Five leagues are to be organized, the Recreation, Church, American, National and International.

Plans to make the International league an all-employe industrial circuit have been abandoned because Farm Tool expressed a desire to play in a faster league and Tappan Stove will not field a team.

TO SPLIT UP

Twelve teams are now on the roster of the National league and this circuit will be broken into two divisions as soon as all rosters are in and the strength of the teams determined. The best half-dozen teams will play in the National league on Tuesday and the other half-dozen in the International on Friday.

Now in this group are: Westinghouse, Mansfield Tire, Ideal Electric, DAV, East Side Nite club, 164th Fighter Squadron, Amvets, North Lake Park, Tom's Restaurant, Johns Park, American Legion Post 16 and Sons of Herman.

Seven teams are set for the Recreation or slowball league on Monday night, and an eighth is expected soon. In the fold are News-Journal, Mansfield Transfer, Phi Sigma Chi, The Bankers, Old Timers, Coffee Shop and Lumbermens.

Six teams are ready for the Thursday night Church league and Kamen would like to book two more. Now in line are Four Square Gospel, First Lutheran, First Methodist, First Congregational, United Brethren and First Presbyterian.

AMERICAN BEST

The fastest cricuit will be the American, league which will play Wednesday. It is the only circuit allowed to use Richland county players who live outside the city of Mansfield. Five teams now comprise the roster of this circuit: Liederkranz, Farm Tools, Office Cafe, Todd Jewelry and Isaly Dairy.

Sixteen teams have taken out permits for practices on city diamonds this week. The schedule:

MONDAY — Lumbermens, North Lake park, DAV, Prospect; American Legion Post 16, Johns park; East Side Nite club, Liberty park.
TUESDAY — Office Cafe, North Lake, Westinghouse, Prospect; United Brethren, Liberty
WEDNESDAY — North Lake Park at North Lake.
THURSDAY — Tom's Restaurant at North Lake park Westinghouse (Engineers) at Prospect, Johns Park at Johns, East Side Nite club at Liberty park.
FRIDAY — Amvets at North Lake; First Presbyterian at Prospect

'Brighter' Side of Sports

LIMA, O. —(AP)— The season's just starting, but it's fairly well settled that Bluffton high school will not win the Lima City league baseball title.

In two league games this week the Blufftons scored a total of two runs and connected for a total of two hits. The two hits came in the same encounter.

Bill Young, Lima Central sophomore, hurled a no-hitter as his club smothered Bluffton 35 to 1. In the other game Tom Riepenhoff of Lima St. John's allowed Bluffton two bingles, accounted for 18 of the 21 putouts via strikeouts, and helped his mates to a 22 to 1 conquest.

So Bluffton has allowed 57 runs in two starts, but has one consolation—it hasn't been shut out yet.

★

LANCASTER — (AP) — Bremen high school's baseball team scored 40 runs in two games Friday. In each game it counted 20 runs, 20 hits and four errors.

Bremen beat Rushville, 20-3, in the morning, and trimmed Berne-Union, 20-7, in the afternoon.

Holtzmiller's 326 Is Good For Pin Lead

Anthony Holtzmiller last night rolled into first place in the men's Class B division of the second annual News-Journal head pin bowling tournament on the Colony alleys.

President of the Mansfield Tire "Owl" league, Holtzmiller ground out games of 105, 116 and 105 for a 326 pin total. His middle game is probably the highest single effort of the meet which extends until April 30 at the Colony.

Lewis Shafer had previously taken over the Class C lead with 97-108-109—314.

Shafer missed the head pin only in the seventh frame of the first line in running up his score. He entered again immediately after his top effort but could count only 203.

Only other new entry among the leaders was Paul Barnes in third place of Class B. He tossed games of 109-106-107 for a 322.

Other scores follow:

MEN'S DIVISION

Class A—Jim Villella, 308 and 297; Cliff Forsythe, 303. Class Penrose, 276
Class B—Earl Turner, 292, Paul Barnes, 322, Louis Mantel, 254, Joe Kunz, 293; Ralph Nelson, 299, John Rhoads, 213 and 237.

Reds to Adopt Grid System

MOBILE, Ala.— (AP) —The Cincinnati Reds are planning to borrow a page from the football book this year in the matter of scouting opponents.

Plans are being made to have Pat Patterson, veteran West Coast scout for the Redlegs remain with the club this year—except that he'll be a series ahead of the team all the way around the National league.

For instance, when the Reds are playing a series, Patterson will be scouting the team they are to meet next. He'll pass along his information about the opponent to Manager Bucky Walters.

In the past, Patterson has confined his activity to searching for talent on the West Coast.

HEADLINER — Willie Russell (above), Ohio lightweight boxing champ, will meet Sparky Reynolds, Indianapolis, in the 10-round main event on Thursday night's VFW pro ring show at the Madison theater. Russell is from Columbus. Four other bouts round out the card.

Vander Meer Still Awaits Test of Arm

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Cold weather interfered again yesterday with the baseball plans of the Cincinnati Reds and the Indianapolis Indians of the American Associaton.

Temperatures in the low thirties made it impossible for the two teams to go through with the scheduled tilt but they'll try it again tomorrow.

The postponement apparently put an end to Johnny Vandermeer's hopes of getting to pitch the opening game of the regular season Tuesday against the St. Louis Cardinals.

VANDY SCHEDULED

Vandy was to have gone to the mound yesterday against the Indians to find out for sure whether he had recovered completely from a pulled muscle. With Vander Meer's condition uncertain, the honor of pitching the opening game will go to Ken Raffensberger.

Vander Meer is scheduled to hurl against the Indians today but he how will have to wait until the second tilt against the Cards to get his regular season work under way.

Despite two days of inactivity, Manager Bucky Walters appeared about set on his opening day lineup. Ray Mueller probably will handle Raffensberger's pitches. The infield probably will be Ted Kluszewski at first, Jimmy Bloodworth at second Red Stallcup at short and Grady Hatton at third.

1949 Baseball Season to Be 'On' Monday

Louis. Brooklyn, with a couple of new speedboys in its outfield and a multitude of youthful reserves, probably is a slight favorite to outfoot the other three.

In recent weeks there have been published reports of dissension between the Boston Braves and their manager, Billy Southworth, who drove them to the '48 flag. The reports were strenuously denied by Southworth and others, but there appears to be some evidence that the defending champs are not one big, happy family.

Cleveland, fielding largely the same veteran club which licked the Braves four games to two in the world series, is virtually cofavorite with the Red Sox. The two clubs finished the '48 race tied in the standing and the Indians won in a play-off, so it is understandable that the experts are having difficulty splitting 'em up.

The Indians still have the game's greatest shortstop in Manager Lou Boudreau, and they boast three potential 20-game winners in Bob Feller, Gene Bearden and Bob Lemon. They will have more reserve strength than last season.

The Red Sox, on the other hand, have Ted Williams on their side.

With Tex Hughson apparently back in form, their pitching promises to be much stouter. Several sound baseball men predicted this spring that Manager Joe McCarthy, now that he knows his Athletes, will drive the Sox to the wire with lengths to spare.

13-Year-Old Wins Batboy Contest

CLEVELAND — (AP) — A 13-year-old 85-pound youngster is probably the happiest boy in Cleveland today — because he's going to be the Cleveland Indians' batboy for 1949.

He is Norman Abernethy, whose essay on the subject, "Why I Would Like to Be the Indians' Bat Boy" helped him win the honor of lugging bats for the world champions. Norman won $1,000 and a big league ball bat, both presented by Indian President Bill Veeck.

Norman lives in nearby Bedford.

Fishing for the most elusive fish in Ohio got under way this past week as anglers lined the banks of the Mad river in Logan county and that part of Macochee creek in Champaign county. The experts and tyros alike vied for the attentions of trout on the only two public fishing waters containing the little scrappers.

The season which opened Friday will extend through September 15. The daily bag limit and legal minimum size—in case anyone gets ambitious and makes the trip—is six fish per day, each above seven inches in length.

Trout which seek cool streams, are among the elite of Ohio fish— there just aren't enough cold streams!

However, I'll take my fever out in casting for bass. You don't have to be so cautious or such an expert!

Handbooks are to be issued to school teachers and others in charge of conservation classes in schools this month by the Ohio Division of Conservation. The handbooks will be used in conjunction with April which has been named as Conservation month.

Might not be such a bad idea if some of the more experienced outdoors men were to volunteer to take groups of youngsters out through the woods during the last half of the month in order to show the kids just what America has and what she is up against in trying to conserve the resources.

From all reports, fishing has been on the dull side for the past week. And just after the article published last Sunday which declared spring fishing to be better than any other time of the year. I will now turn a deep red and hold my breath while I count to 1,000 —very slowly!

As one noted columnist declares—. I pre-e-e-dict— that given a good morning rain and a little choppy water in the afternoon, crappies and bass will churn the water to a froth at Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill this week!

As an afterthought, a 16-inch crappie washed up on the shores of Charles Mill recently. That's not a bad crappie!

Unfortunately, a number of woodchucks and possums are also to be found around the shores of the lake. Evidently high water flooded them out on the islands and drowned them.

Another fight looming on the sporting front is that between the League of Ohio Sportsmen and the Ohio Conservation Congress. The League wants the conservation unification bill knocked out until the Metzenbaum amendment is excluded while the Congress wants the whole works to pass.

The League has threatened to carry the matter to the people for a referendum vote—and the Congress promises to "welcome it and fight to the finish".

Well, there you are. Battle lines are drawn up. The state legislature has been through the same gamut and now the sportsmen are going to get down into the root of the matter.

William L. White, president of the OCC, verbally pinned back the ears of the League by saying, "The League has been organized 40 years, and still represents not more than 18 to 20 per cent of the states sportsmen and conservation clubs."

Just offhand, we'd predict that if petitions are ever placed in the hardware stores and a referendum vote called, the unity bill will take the darndest licking since Bunker Hill!

Had quite a time with a "zodiac fishing calender" this past week. Fooled around with the dadgummed thing until I found that the best fishing will be when the wind is from the west, the weather is clear, and the moon is in the first quarter or is a new moon. Next I turned to a west wind, cloudy weather, moon the same—and fishing is still good.

Greatly heartened by this discovery, I turned to that old pet peeve of most fishermen, the east wind. Stormy, rainy, cloudy or clear, fishing was rated from fair to good and now and then a poor popped up in and last quarter of the moon.

The other day the calender said conditions were ideal so I experimented. A south wind, cloudy weather and fishing was supposed to be the best. I caught NO fish.

Two days later the calender showed it to be poor fishing—an east wind, cloudy, moon in the last quarter etc. I caught a mess of bass.

I'm still skeptical of these calenders and am convinced the fish are ALWAYS biting for a man who knows how to fish. Much to my sorrow I came home emptyhanded on a good many excursions, so my wife can't claim I'm bragging when I make that statement!

It was my misfortune to view a tragedy on the highways Wednesday night. A mother had her back injured and four of her children were killed outright. The others, all nursing, and too small to feed with a medicine dropper or bottle, will probably starve to death.

There you have it, 13 possums killed because one motorist failed to move over two or three inches on the road. I was following close behind when the old possum started across the road and saw her struck by the car just ahead. Four little pink objects were hurled from her pouch and landed on the concrete highway. I stopped, moved the old one to the side of the road and hoped she might recover from the back injury. It's doubtful, although she was snapping at me and trying to crawl off when I left. Her pouch was still filled with young.

This is just one of the many little tragedies which take place every day and night, all through the year.

Mansfield continues to peek away at a little more recognition on the national sporting front, the latest item being a short in Hunting and Fishing magazine concerning Henry Morganstirn and his wolf-greyhound coon dog.

The story was carried on the outdoors page several months ago and has just made its appearance in the magazine.

And in this month's issue (April) of the Ohio Conservation Bulletin, there appeared nearly a full page of pictures of the Richland County Fish and Game association's new conservation farm, also from the N-J outdoors page. In the same issue, there is an article by Mansfielder L. S. Barr, 115 Poplar street.

CLOSE-UP — Picture taken through binoculars at 300 feet brings bird up close.

Device Joins Camera and Binoculars

Using a simple wooden attachment, L. S. Barr, 115 Poplar street, brings distant objects up close to his camera by taking pictures through binoculars.

The idea is particularly useful for outdoor enthusiasts who make a hobby of wildlife photography. Telescopic lenses are available for cameras, but the camera fan who has binoculars can achieve good results without purchasing special equipment.

Barr's combination consists of a Zeis Ikon camera and 6x30 B. & L. binoculars. A platform of quarter-inch plywood with a brass plate underneath, threaded to fit the tripod, serves as a base Clamps on the surface hold the camera and binoculars in place. A sleeve covering the camera lens and the eyepiece of the binoculars keeps out sidelight.

Holders must be adapted in size and shape to the type of camera and binoculars used, Barr pointed out.

When the equipment is ready for use, he explained, the infinity setting on the camera in feet is multiplied by the power of the binoculars. Thus, a camera with a setting of 50 used with six-power binoculars would be computed at 6x50, or 300 feet, as the distance at which the camera should register sharply. It will be found that objects much closer will still be in focus, and everything beyond the distance, Barr stated.

Barr takes his pictures in good light, opening the diaphragm to 5.6 and using the same time for the exposure that would normally be used with the camera alone.

In the use of a combination of this type, experimentation will be necessary, Barr emphasized. Fixed details cannot be given because of differences in equipment. Barr said he has found his equipment satisfactory for nearly any type of distance shooting, his prints including even pictures of the moon.

Sandusky Bay Fight Continuing

Ban Sought On 'Money' Fishing

The never-ending battle between commercial and hook and line fishermen goes into extra innings in the near future, according to representatives of the Izaak Walton League of America, Ohio branch.

The league, seeking to close Sandusky bay to commercial fishing, plans to use the tactics which won the first round for the commercial men last year — the choice of dress. During the legislative battle during the last assembly, the men who fish the waters of Lake Erie for a living showed up at the hearings dressed in old clothes and boots to show they made their livelihood in this manner. This year the league urges members to wear fishing licenses and to carry poles (in addition to the clothing customarily worn by the human race) during the hearings.

Boiled down, the arguments are these:

The league claims commercial fishermen take and keep too many undersized fish and destroy spawning beds—the commercial fishermen claim they don't.

The league points to the $11,000 paid in by the commercial fishermen for licenses then compares that with the millions invested in making Lake Erie a recreational center. The commercial fishermen claim there aren't any game fish in Sandusky bay anyhow.

Just to keep the argument from being a two-sided brawl, the little commercial fishermen have stepped in with cries of how the big time operators are going out in the lake and taking the pickerel and perch while they stay near the shallow water and catch carp.

A wire story from Columbus declared the small-time fishermen said they were aiding the hook and line fishermen because they destroyed the carp which feed on game fish.

Mansfield sportsmen are still chuckling over that one.

Honors Won By Coon Dog

Flying Boots, outstanding coon dog owned by Clyde Moore of Mansfield, copped first place in the line finals at Jackson last week.

Boots, Oklahoma Shucks, and Blackbird were among the dogs owned by Moore which won heat honors for either line or tree.

The rangy white hound which took the line final at Jackson is declared by many dog lovers to be one of the finest coon dogs in the country.

Casting Club Calls Meeting to Arrange Summer Program

Possibilites of night casting will be discussed at a meeting called by the Mansfield Casting club for Thursday night, E. J. Horning, chairman, announced today.

Horning urged that everyone attend who is interested in casting in order that a suitable program may be set up for this summer.

"In the past everyone had an idea this was for experts only," he declared. "There is no such 'tag' on this club. It's just a group which likes to get out and practice casting. We want more of the so-called amateurs to join the program."

In the past the club has limited its activities to bait casting, but if enough interest is evinced at Thursday's organization meeting a fly casting division will operate this year, Horning said.

The group ordinarily meets one night a week but has been handicapped in the past by a shortage of time before dark closed in to halt the competition. This year it is hoped that suitable lighting can be arranged for night casting.

Ideas for sponsoring a junior event for youngsters will be brought out at the meeting so youthful Mansfielders can learn correct fishing and casting technique, Horning added.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. in Room 11 at the YMCA.

PUZZLE — Close examination of this picture shows a snake coiled around the neck of the grouse. The bird was shot last fall by William Kline, a retired business man of Reading, Pa. Just what happened in this peculiar freak of nature is anybody's guess. Possibly the snake coiled itself around the bird's neck in self-defense and was then for some reason unable to free itself.

Nets Lost By Canadians

GENEVA — (AP) — Not only the fish, but the nets, too, got away from Canadian fishermen who were surprised fishing in United States waters, an Ohio conservation district official has disclosed.

Charles Mitchell, Ashtabula county game protector, reported seizure of 30 boxes of gill fish nets which Canadians cut loose from their fish tugs and abandoned when they were spotted fishing in Lake Erie northwest of Ashtabula harbor. He estimated value of the nets at $4,000.

The Canadian boats were almost within sight of the Ohio shoreline and at least 10 miles inside the limit fixed by international treaty, Mitchell said.

Seven Rabid Skunks Killed By Farmers

MARION — (AP) — What's worse than a skunk on your door-step?

Answer: A skunk with rabies.

Seven rabid skunks have been killed by Marion county farmers in the last two weeks, Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner has reported. State medical authorities in Columbus, who examined the heads of the animals, said all seven were infected.

Two other skunks, believed to have been rabid, were killed but the state reports on them have not yet been received.

In neighboring Delaware county, a resident of Sunbury was bitten by a rabid skunk, Dr. W. S. Ramsey, Delaware county health commissioner said. The victim is undergoing anti-rabies treatment.

There have been no reports of attacks on humans by skunks in Marion county but all rural residents have been warned to pen or tie their dogs at night as a protective measure.

Health authorities also report that rabid foxes have been found in Delaware and Union counties although none have been discovered in Marion county.

Plan Youth Conference

Paul L. White, organization director of the Richland County Farm Bureau, has been selected as the publicity director for a week-long youth conference to be held at Baldwin-Wallace college, Berea, starting July 24.

White was chosen at a meeting of county organization directors and youth committee chairmen from Richland and 11 surrounding counties at the Sky club.

Richard Wolford, Mansfield, R. D. 2, chairman of this 12-county area Farm Bureau Youth committee, outlined the program to be given at the college July.

Yesterday's meeting was under the direction of R. J. "Rol" Elliott, Mansfield, R. D. 3, fieldman for the Ohio Farm Bureau out of Columbus. He was assisted by Darwin Bryan, state director of youth.

To Ohio Legislature, the Fox Isn't Beast, Fish Nor Fowl

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS — (AP) — You can't hunt fox in Ohio!

It's okay, if you're in the mood, to pursue, shoot, club to death, trap or otherwise reduce the animal to your possession, but under Ohio law you can't hunt it.

So says H. A. (Buck) Rider, commissioner of the Ohio division of conservation and natural resources.

The "gimmick," if the above appears to be double talk, is that Ohio statutes, and the dictionary define a hunter as one who pursues game.

And the fox, Rider says, is not game in this state. In fact, so far as the state is concerned, the fox — either the vulpes fulvus (red) or the urocyon cinereo-argentatus (gray) — just isn't anything.

The legislature, in setting up some new game laws a couple of years ago, ignored the fox completely. In the game lists you won't find him among the game animals, the game birds, the fish or the furbearers. He (or she) just isn't mentioned.

"That was a far-reaching decision which the legislature made," Rider said. "For years the fox was listed among our fur-bearing animals. Then the legislature decided it wasn't a furbearer. The legislature also decided the quail was a song bird, not a game bird.

"But if you ask 100 persons whether the fox is a fur-bearer, and whether the quail is a game bird, you'll get 99 affirmative answers."

Ohio laws ban hunting on Sunday — but that doesn't prevent you from killing fox on that day. When you kill a fox, or pursue him, you just aren't hunting.

Shooting on Sundays also is banned in the state of some extent — trapshooting and target shooting are legal — which outlaws the seeking of game with a gun. But if you want to club a fox to death on that day, or shoot him with shotgun, rifle or bow and arrow, no one will do anything about it so far as the conservation division is concerned.

"The laws against shooting on Sunday are just some old 'blue laws' to which no one pays much attention anymore," Rider said. "And if someone shoots a fox on Sunday, who will be bothered? The division has no jurisdiction over the fox. So far as this department and the state legislature are concerned, the animal just doesn't exist."

Meetings Planned

WASHINGTON — Dr. Clarence Cottam, assistant director of the fish and wildlife service, yesterday announced a series of meetings will be held to present data on migratory waterfowl to state officials, conservation agencies and sportsmen's groups. A meeting is scheduled for Columbus, Ohio, May 17.

Favor Bay Action

FREMONT — (AP) — The Fremont Isaak Walton league and Wightman½s boat club are planning to send representatives to Columbus Tuesday when committee hearings open on several measures to regulate fishing on Sandusky bay. One bill under consideration would ban commercial fishing in the bay.

Tiny Princess Has First Press 'Talk'

LA CONVERSION, Switzerland —(AP)— Princess Marguerite, three-week-old daughter of former King Mahai of Romania and Princess Anne of Bourbon Parma, held her first news conference yesterday in the arms of her mother. The little princess didn't open her eyes once.

Mihai announced she had been baptized Friday in the Greek Orthodox church. The ceremony was held in the former king's modest villa here. The princess was baptized under the name Marguerite.

Plans Laid for Spring Vacation Events

By MARGIE GOODMAN and MARILYN SCHULER

Happy Easter everyone! Tell me, what goes with the Easter season? You guessed it—bunnies—and the Hy-Fun council is starting the vacation off with the Bunny Hop this Monday evening at the YMCA. You do the dancing, and Myron Hilligoss's orchestra will supply the music.

By the way, did you know that there is a new ice cream machine in the hallowed halls of the YM? All you do is put in some money, and the ice cream comes out, dope and all.

At 4:30 a. m. tomorrow, four cars full of Hi-Y boys and their leaders will depart for Washington, D. C. These seniors will visit all the famous places; the Smithsonian Institute, Mt. Vernon, the Lincoln Memorial, the Library of Congress, Annapolis, and many more. They even have a moonlight ride on the Potomac river on their agenda.

On Tuesday sophomore and junior Hi-Y members, and also the seniors who aren't going to Washington, will spend a day in Columbus. They are going to take in the state capital, the penitentiary, the museum, the Ohio State campus, and the Columbus Y.M.C.A.

Do you enjoy sports? Do you like to have a good time? Naturally! Then come to Sports Night, May 4, sponsored by the Leaders' club. You can enter the contests or just watch. Either way it's a wonderful way to spend an evening.

The seniors aren't the only ones with big plans for the end of the year. It seems like the juniors have "upped" and arranged a picnic. The date hasn't been set yet but all the committees have been chosen and everything has been taken care of. Committees are: arrangements— Jack Bargahiser; refreshments — Larry Daley chairman, Tom Tucker, Ed Schmidt, and Bob Hartnett; attendance—George McNew and Bob Hipp; program — Howard Tipper and Willie Fowler; co-chairman, Chuck Harper, Larry Goldsmith, Charles Marchant, Tom Tucker, Jean Sinerson, Colleen Coppert, and Shirley Lay.

CAMBRIDGE — (AP) — Five Philadelphia, Pa., residents were injured when their automobile collided with a Greyhound bus yesterday on Route 40, eight miles east of here.

None of the 30 passengers on the Pittsburgh-to-Columbus bus were hurt.

The auto, driven by John Wright, 37, hit the bus after skidding on a curve, the state highway patrol reported. Snow had made the highway slippery.

Expect 300 At Meeting In Lexington

Rural Women Hold 'Achievement Day'

Between 250 and 300 women are expected to attend the annual "Achievement Day" program Tuesday of the Richland county home demonstration council, Miss Mabel Spray, home demonstration agent, announced.

The program will be held in the Presbyterian church in Lexington, starting at 10 a. m. Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer and Mrs. Rebecca Olds of Middlefield, will be the principal speakers.

Mrs. Olds will speak on her experiences in visiting farm homes in France and Holland when she was the Ohio delegate at a meeting of the Associated Country Women of the World at Amsterdam in 1947.

Miss Spray will summarize council activities for the past year. There will be group singing and Mrs. Ben Valentine will give a reading.

An original skit will be presented by the Plamoy Group.

Offers Jobs To Teachers

JUNEAU, Alaska — (AP) — If you are a school teacher who wants to get away from it all, the Alaska Native service has a job for you.

You can get away from traffic jams, crowded school rooms, housing problems and even school boards. But you can't get away from the parents—they'll probably be among your students.

You can get away from relatives who have moved in, but you can't get away from your spouse. The native service wants him—or her—to go along with you. It will even give him—or her—a job.

Every year about this time, George A. Dale begins looking for teachers. Dale is director of education in the Alaska Native service, which is under the office of Indian affairs in the department of interior.

The teachers he wants are those who will go to Alaska and stay. It's a gamble, of course. There have been some who have taken one look at their far-away outpost and turned right around and headed back home.

The native service has 76 village schools and three boarding schools in Alaska. They vary in size from one-teacher schools with 12 or 13 pupils to Point Barrow where seven teachers are employed under Wilson.

The service allows one teacher, and one special assistant, for each 25 pupils. The special assistant will be your husband if you're assigned to one of the remote schools. He'll help you with your work but equally important, he'll be a companion. That's to keep you from talking to yourself during the long nights around the Arctic circle.

Second Role Lasts Years

NEW YORK — (AP) — Judy Holliday, a youthful, gorgeous blonde, says she is becoming a Broadway dowager almost before she has finished her second engagement in a Rialto play.

On Feb. 4 Judy will begin her fourth year in the leading role of the Garson Kanin comedy about life in Washington, D. C., "Born Yesterday," a part which she has played for more than 1,200 performances.

"It is only my second role on Broadway," Miss Holliday said, "and I feel like a real veteran even though my first role was for only a very short run.

Open Room Planning Gives Flexibility In Small Homes

Modern small home architecture hinges on the open planning of rooms so that they are flexible for varied activities. One room thus performs the function of two or more, say architectural experts.

Space formerly divided into living-room, dining-room, kitchen and breakfast area has evolved into a single generous-sized room ingeniously combining all these facilities while still being beautiful and comfortable.

This results from a completely changed mode of American family life. With the passing of large-scale formal entertaining there is small need for a dining-room. Architects logically asked "Why devote space to a room used informally only a few hours a day?" than logically eliminated it. The public accepted this reasoning because double - duty space became essential as the size of houses decreased in order to compensate for soaring construction costs.

SAVING IN WALLS

By combining functional space into one large room, spaciousness is provided within restricted floor area and there is an important saving in costs of partitions and doors.

Today's room for living-dining-cooking is designed so that there are long, broad vistas, yet proper planning screens kitchen activities from living area without partitions. This is accomplished in countless ingenious ways.

One of the most popular is to arrange the room in an L shape with the kitchen tucked into the L. Further separation is achieved by a low counter or storage wall; or by folding doors to be closed only when the kitchen is in use. Modern mechanical ventilation prevents odors: acoustical materials stop kitchen clatter.

Generous built - in storage space eliminates the need for the traditional buffet and china cabinet; hence there is no real need to separate the dining area from the rest of the room, especially if a drop-leaf or gate-leg table is used that can be utilized for other purposes.

Where separation is desired, low book shelves, storage walls, plant boxes, or even grouping heavy furniture, such as the sofa and a wing chair, across the room will divide the areas yet preserve the long vistas of the open plan.

Nearly all open planning makes generous use of glass for a greater illusion of space. Huge floor - to - ceiling windows bring the outdoors into the room, meet the desire for a feeling of freedom.

Choose Site With Care

Location of the home and of community services and facilities is as important to value as quality of construction and is usually the factor that accounts for the hundreds of dollars difference in the price of two identical houses.

A "yes" in answer to all or a majority of these questions is imperative for highest value in building or buying:

Are churches, schools, stores, parks, playgrounds, recreation and transportation facilities easily accessible and are transportation costs reasonable?

Are utilities such as gas, water, electricity and sewers present and paid for? (Sometimes assessments stand against the property and future assessments are possible for street improvements many blocks away.)

Is the neighborhood improving; are property values rising? Are adjoining homes well-maintained? Is the neighborhood attractive, free of objectionable noises, smoke or odors? Is vehicular traffic light?

Are there adequate police and fire protection, garbage, rubbish and snow removal? Are streets well-lighted? Is the local government solvent, operating economically, providing efficient services at reasonable tax rate? Is the nearby school in the same district as the home? (Sometimes it is not; children must attend a distant one.)

Heating Plant Needs Spring Repair Work

As soon as the heating plant is shut down for the summer, it should be cleaned and repaired.

In a steam or hot water system, the boiler should be completely filled.

All soot and scale should be removed from interior surfaces of the furnace with a wire brush. Even gas forms scale which lowers heating plant efficiency. The smoke pipe should be examined for cracks and if any are found the pipe should be replaced, not repaired. Joints where the pipe enters the chimney should be made air-tight.

All parts of a hot water system, including radiators, should be left full of water to prevent rusting. Fill the boiler to the top. In the fall, drain off the excess. A steam boiler should be filled to the height of the safety valve. Water already in the system should not be drained.

George Washington's Home Now Fire-Safe

To lessen the danger of destruction by fire of George Washington's home at Mount Vernon, the entire structure was insulated with mineral wool several years ago on recommendation of the U.S. Bureau of Standards. Bureau tests revealed that fire starting in any room could be confined there at least one hour if the hollow spaces behind the wood-lath and plaster walls were filled with this naturally fireproof insulation, and thus give firemen a chance to put out the blaze before it could spread. The roof was given the same protection from fire which might start from outside sources.

INSPECT CEMENT BLOCKS

Cement blocks should be dry when placed in a wall. High quality cement blocks should have straight edges and corners and should meet strength, absorption and moisture content tests.

New Motor Has Only 1 Moving Part

HAMBURG, GERMANY — (AP) — Imagine a car, within the reach of everyone, without gear shifting, the speed 80 miles an hour and gas consumption 35 miles per gallon.

Can such a car be built soon? An enterprising German engineer thinks so.

Hans Harmsen, 24, claims he has invented the "motor which will revolutionize automobile industry." He says his motor works on the principle of a turbine and is better, cheaper and more economical than any existing motor.

It is very simple in construction, consisting of the turbine wheel, the only moving part in the motor, and the outer shell.

The turbine wheel, with eight or ten broad plates around the edge, tightly fits the case. The space between two blades is a closed chamber. In action, a fuel-air mixture is injected between the blades. These turn, and one third of a revolution farther the mixture is ignited by a spark plug.

The ensuing pressure of the gases pushes the turbine wheel around. Spent gases are ejected through a conventional exhaust with a muffler. Since each of the compartments is followed directly by the next, the action is continuous, with a steady pressure and not, as in the reciprocating motor, a series of pulses.

Low-Cost Housing Problems Unsolved In Mansfield Area

Prospective Buyers Face Two Hurdles

Financing Stands As Big Obstacle

By MALCOLM HARTLEY

Low-cost housing, now an issue being debated on a nation-wide scale, remains an unsolved and partially disregarded problem in the Mansfield area.

This is a conclusion drawn on the basis of a partial survey. Further examination will be continued, with reports made in the Sunday News-Journal building section from time to time.

As the situation stands today, a working man whose pay check and expenses are in too close a balance to permit him to accumulate a substantial surplus for a down payment has scant chance of purchasing a home. This applies even though the prospective buyer is paying as much or more in rent than he would need for payments on a home.

Two obstacles stand in the path of would-be home buyers: price and financing. Individuals of the income-class group with which this article is concerned, are not regarded by financial institutions, on a long-range basis, as able to pay over $5,000 for a home, or at the most, $6,000.

Can houses in the $5,000 class be constructed in Mansfield and vicinity.

This is a question which must be given a "yes and no" answer. Houses are being built and sold for $5,000 and less. But this survey has not yet found a $5,000 house which could be financed in any of the normal channels, such as banks, building and loan companies or mortgage firms.

William S. Ross, manager of the Home Materials company, gave one answer to the question:

"I would say it is impossible to build a $5,000 house which buyers would accept. Requirements are much different than they were 25 years ago. A quarter of a century ago, houses were built with no refinements. When the newly-married son in a family needed a home, his father gave him a helping hand. They built a house, or had it built. It consisted of four walls with partitions to form rooms. That was all.

"The house had no built-in cupboards, no recessed bathroom cabinets, and if it had a bathroom at all, there were no fancy fixtures and no built-in bathtub.

"The type of house accepted in those days could be built for $5,000 today — but who would want it?"

Ross's firm has, for more than a year, been handling a "package" lumber offer which provides for $1,600 to $2,000 all the construction materials needed to build a home. He estimated that a man who could do his own work might be able to construct a home for $5,000.

Some home builders are doing just that, but again the problem of financing appears. There is no method to finance the purchase of materials. The man who is unable to make a sizable down payment on a home is in no better position to buy materials to build his own.

SEEK FHA

Here and there, efforts are being made to find an answer. Dean D. Tyson, 559 Park avenue west, a local building contractor, has for several months been attempting to secure approval in the Cleveland office of Federal Housing on plans for an "economy" house.

"I drew up my original plans with the hope of being able to build small, but good, houses to sell with a lot for $5,500," Tyson explained. "But to do this without FHA approval, which would open the way for financing, would be an impossibility."

Tyson's first plans were returned by the FHA with a number of changes suggested, he stated. He is now completing new building plans which will be sent soon to FHA. Because of added costs necessary to meet FHA requirements, the house would have to sell for over $6,000, he estimated.

His plans call for a house with over-all dimensions of 30 by 22 feet. This would be a one-floor structure with no basement. It would contain a living room 17 by 11, bedroom 10 by 12, bedroom 9 by 9½, kitchen and dining space 9 by 10, utility room 5 by 10 and four closets.

FHA regulation would permit the financing of a stove, refrigerator, washing machine and clothes dryer of the same long-term low interest as allowed on the house, if these items were purchased at the same time as the house.

"Elimination of the basement is becoming an accepted practice," declared Tyson. "Formerly, I did not favor this because of the problem of cool, damp floors. Researchers at the University of Illinois overcame this problem."

ECONOMY GAINING

In recent months, FHA has been showing increasing interest in low-cost housing. One FHA-approved house is being marketed for $5,350. (A description of the house is given elsewhere on this page. The house is NOT available in the Mansfield area.)

FHA action is not binding on financial institutions which make mortgage loans. They are not required to serve FHA loans, and many do not. There are various lending agencies which can handle FHA-guaranteed loans, and Mansfield has mortgage firms which do handle them. At present, however, only one bank in Mansfield takes FHA loans. This is the Farmers Savings and Trust company.

For this reason, the question of financing "economy" homes was addressed to Paul M. Eliot, president of this bank.

"While it is an impossibility to make a blanket endorsement," stated Eliot, "we would be interested in financing FHA-approved homes of this type on an individual basis. After all, each mortgage must be handled separately, and in each case we must use our best judgement in deciding whether or not to make a loan."

"There is some misunderstanding about FHA loans," Eliot explained. "It is true that the government guarantees the loans. We are often asked why we do not accept any loans approved by FHA. The answer is this. We do not want to foreclose on any mortgages. Consequently it is sometimes better to say 'no,' and perhaps be thanked later for the action, than to say 'Yes' and then be forced to take a man's home away from him."

It can be stated with reasonable assurance that FHA-approved homes in the $5,000 to $6,000 class can be financed—if they can be built in the Mansfield area.

PRIVATE FINANCING

FHA "economy" houses remain a matter for the future. There is one other method by which low-cost housing can be stimulated. This is by private financing. This opens the way to cheap construction methods. The word "cheap," in this case, does not necessarily mean shoddy. Houses privately financed do not have to meet the requirements of loaning agencies, and, if constructed outside the city limits, are not restricted by building codes.

Would there be a market for cheap, unfinished houses in the Mansfield area?

The man best qualified to answer the question is W. O. Burkholder, and his opening comment gives the answer in a dramatic fashion.

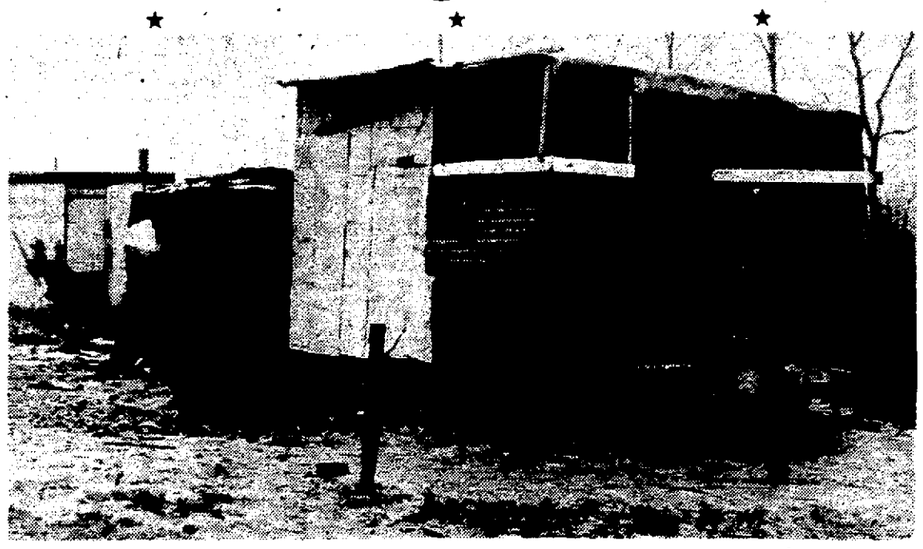
"If you give any publicity to my activities in the Country Club addition, explain to the readers that I have no more lots in the addition. This is the case, and unless it is understood, I would be besieged day and night by would-be house buyers."

Burkholder has been financing small houses constructed by the Patton Brothers. He gave no estimate on the number of houses he has financed, but many of type which he handles dot the area.

These houses are small four-room structures which are turned over to the buyers in an unfinished state. Other than the electric wiring, the houses consist merely of the bare walls. They are finished outside with asbestos shingles and inside with plaster board.

The houses sell for $2800 to $3200 on a basis of $200 down and $30 a month in payments, Burkholder stated.

"I don't claim these structures meet modern housing standards," he declared. "But they do serve to let a man get a roof over his head at a price he can pay. And he can improve the house over a period of time."



MORE EUROPEAN AID NEEDED?—No, ERP can't assist in this housing problem. These dwelling places are not in Europe. They are on the outskirts of Mansfield, and there are dozens of others like them scattered around the city's boundaries. In some cases the one-room shacks house families with several children.

Builders Offer Novel Rent-Buy Plan

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— "Rent a new home with option to buy later," reads an advertisement in a Los Angeles newspaper.

Your first impression is that you've picked up a pre-war newspaper by mistake. But no, the date is 1949.

"You get a brand new home on a five year lease, with option to buy at the end of four years," the ad continues. "You pay $49 50 per month plus a returnable deposit of $500 on the option.

"You get this $500 back with two per cent interest if the option is not exercised. If you do buy, you get an added credit of $10 out of each month's rent to apply along with the $500 deposit on the total purchase price of $6250."

Sounds incredible, but it isn't. It's Victor Girard's plan for beating the high cost of housing. Girard is executive director of Palisades Builders, Inc.

How, in this era of inflation, can a builder make any money at such prices?

"That's easy," says Birard, "With our own financing we can build a home, and make a profit, for $6,250."

Girard's financing, incidentally, is done by Thomas E. Bragg, president of Palisades Builders, who guessed right when the market went sour in 1929. He is reported to have made millions while other fortunes were crumbling.

"Mass production methods, assembly line construction, with workmen moving from one house to the next with no loss of time," says Girard, "is the secret of success in building today. Savings in labor are even more important than savings in material."

The homes all have one floor plan: 685 square feet of floor space, with two bedrooms. Dining area is in the living room. The houses have cement slab floors, exposed-beam ceilings, flat roofs, and car sheds instead of garages.

Girard estimates they save $600 by eliminating the garage, and $300 by leaving the ceiling beams exposed. A pitched roof might cost another $500 additional. The shell of the house is of standard construction — wood framing and studding, with interior plastered, exterior stuccoed. They are heated by dual wall furnaces.

"These houses would not be acceptable in colder regions of the country," Girard says.

"But we are building in Southern California, where the climate is mild. Why should we make people buy $2,000 worth of material they don't need?"

"The price of $6250, I believe, is $1000 to $1500 below comparable houses in this area. The average down payment for non-veterans is $2000, compared with our $500.

For the prospective home buyer, the best part of the Girard deal is this:

If the house isn't worth $6250 four years from now, you and the builder can re-negotiate the price. If the builder doesn't set a price that suits you at that time, you don't have to buy the house—and you get your $500 back.

NOVEL PLAN—Customers get an unusual offer from these builders, who rent houses until the tenants are ready to buy. At right is Victor Girard instructing general contractor, C. J. Rogers.

Five Drivers Pay Fines

Seven persons were arraigned in municipal court yesterday for various traffic violations.

Five were fined a total of $40 and costs, one case was continued and another motorist forfeited bond when he failed to appear in court.

Herman A. Bohland, 272 Spring street, and Marion D. Reed, 151 West Third street, entered pleas of guilty to a charge of speeding and were fined $10 and costs each. Edward J. Kemper, Cleveland, charged with speeding, failed to appear in court and forfeited $25 bond.

Hearing for Luther Ray, 512 Oakenwaldt avenue, charged with unsafe operation of his car, was continued to April 23.

When he pleaded guilty to a charge of unsafe operation, Ernest W. McDonald, R. D. 3, Mansfield was fined $10 and costs.

For driving a car with a temporary driver's permit, without a licensed driver, William Jones, 356½ West Fifth street, was fined $5 and costs.

Steel Output Given Assist By Railroad

To help meet steel production needs, the Pennsylvania railroad has ordered 960 bulk containers each of eight-ton capacity, for transporting lime, dolomite, ferr-manganese and other steel constituents, it was announced yesterday.

The bulk containers, in batteries of 12, mounted in specially-equipped gondola cars, move directly to sidings within steel mills. From there they are handled by crane to the furnaces and emptied through bottom doors, which control the rate of flow.

The use of these units by the steel mills is economical since it eliminates rehandling, which before in many cases was performed manually, railroad officials said.

Cake Baking Facts Found

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — It's getting so a housewife won't have a single alibi left if her cake turns out a flop.

The experts are using aviation science to wipe out one excuse that a lot of tough-luck bakers maybe never even thought of. That's atmospheric pressure.

It seems there's a lot of difference between baking a cake in Herkimer, N. Y., and whipping one up in Denver, Colo. This is particularly true with the package cake mixes now so popular with grandma, bride and the professional baker.

Adjustments must be made in baking recipes to allow for the low air pressure of high places and accompanying variations in moisture content. A recipe producing a perfect light cake in Herkimer might result in something as flat as a cold omelet in high altitude Denver.

One of the nation's big millers worked out the problem through aviation science. Cakes were baked in a "flying kitchen" that went up to 7,000 feet without leaving the ground. The aerial kitchen is a pressure chamber used by the U. S. army air forces at Rochester, Minn., to conduct altitude tests on humans during the last war.

Young Slayer Enters Prison

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Ervin Arthur (Bud) Ingle of Bryan entered Ohio penitentiary yesterday to serve a life sentence for murder.

The youngest prisoner in the penitentiary, the youngster was assigned number 88074.

Ervin displayed no emotion as guards silently swung open the iron gates to admit him.

PUTTY WINDOWS

Before painting windows, be sure the putty holding the glass is sound. Scrape out old, chipped putty down to the wood, coat the wood with linseed oil and apply new putty. Let this dry for 24 hours before painting.

Five Persons Arrested

Five persons were arrested by police during the week end, Chief Ralph Hoffman reported today.

Two were charged with drunkenness, two with disorderly conduct and one with assault and battery.

Walks From Texas to Ohio For Pension

MARIETTA —(AP)— A 66-year-old man entered the Washington county court house here this week and told authorities he walked all the way from Amarillo, Tex., to collect his old-age pension.

Andrew Clyde Fulton, a crippled blacksmith, said he was in Amarillo when he first applied for the pension. He was told he must return home to obtain relief.

Bundling himself in a tattered overcoat, he started walking back to Washington county, after an absence of 50 years. He said the trip took three months.

Fulton said he was born in Athens county, but lived near Rockland in Washington county when he was a boy.

Authorities placed the man in the county infirmary.

SOUNDS GOOD—This attractive small house is one of several throughout the country selected by the Federal Housing and Home Finance agency to show how builders are now producing low-cost dwellings which embody good planning and top-quality construction. (This house is not available in the Mansfield area.) It was erected on a large plot with plenty of room for additions. Price was $5,350. Basement was eliminated and kitchen and bath placed back-to-back to save costs. A dining nook of the kitchen is at the front of the house beneath a window to afford a pleasant view. The oversized living room is separated from the front door by a vestibule and large closet space is provided for two bedrooms. The house, containing 624 square feet, is heated by an air-circulating fireplace. An oil or gas heater could be used at only slight additional cost. The house is insulated. An attic, not high enough for converting into a room, has ample space for general storage. The house is of standard frame construction. Asbestos-cement board covers wood sheating. Interior walls and ceilings are gypsum lath and plaster and the house has a hardwood floor over a good subfloor. A down payment of $450 was required. Carrying charges, including payments on principal, interest, hazard insurance and taxes, total 33.84 per month.

A friend of the late Indian leader Mahatma Gandhi, and other leaders of the Asiatic sphere, Chavre will speak on "Russia's Design on the East."

In a talk before the Mansfield Optimist club a week ago, he pointed out that Russia would have a difficult time impressing communism on the Indian people because of their religion and other inherent native privileges.

Mansfield's New Citizens

'Visit' to U. S. Extends to 36 Years

Herbert Duvall, Mansfield, R. D. 6, "didn't intend to stay" in the U. S. when he answered an add in the Morrisburg, Ontario, Canada newspaper 36 years ago.

Today, he "wouldn't want to go back" to the Canadian farming community which was his birthplace.

"Oh, I like to go back on trips," the genial Duvall commented, "but Mansfield always looks good when you come back."

"I left home with a 75-cent suitcase and two suits of underwear and just enough money to get me to Middletown, Ohio," he related. "I had read an ad in the paper asking for steel furnace openers in Middletown.

"When I got there they opened the furnaces with tongs instead of by hand and I didn't know how to do it. So my friend, who came along, and I went down to Portsmouth where they were building a new mill. The foreman asked us if we wanted to work or loaf. We both decided we'd better work since we didn't have any money, so we took the job."

Today, Duvall doesn't "owe a cent"; he's retired and enjoys working for himself on his 73-acre dairy farm on Route 314, about six miles northwest of the city.

Behind him are 28 years service as a shearman at the Empire Steel corporation. He jokingly muses that they've been struggling along at the mill even though he hasn't been around for three years.

PREFERS OHIO

Duvall not only likes Richland county the best of the U. S. terrain he has seen; he likes Ohio. One suspects, while he's telling it, that there's a romantic connection with the state. He met Mrs. Duvall in Massillon during his five years there.

Although he is French-Canadian by birth, he's Scotch and French by ancestry. He remembers his home town along the St. Lawrence river as a "quiet little place, not as big as Crestline."

"Everybody would go down town in their cars on Saturday nights and watch the people go by. It was a nice town but it certainly wasn't very exciting."

Lack of much industry in his native section also kept many of the people poor and forced them to live in shacks or "dog" houses" as he put it.

"You think you have shacks here. You should see them in Canada, especially north of Morrisburg. You still see log houses in that area.

"No, I wouldn't want to go back there to live. The winters are too cold and there's nothing to do," he added.

Duvall, who formerly lived on Wolfe avenue in Mansfield, is the father of three children, Mrs. Charles L. Gunder, Park avenue west road; Mrs. Jess Reidle of Crestline and William who makes his home with his parents.

HE STAYED—Herbert Duvall, retired steel mill employe, who didn't come to America to stay 36 years ago, looks as if he's pretty well satisfied with his newly-adopted country as he relaxes in an easy chair in his living room at Mansfield, R. D. 6. Duvall, French-Canadian by birth, is a native of Morrisburg, Ontario, Canada.—(N-J photo)

$18,000 Pours In for Heroes

SAN MARINO, CALIF. — (AP) — Heroism is paying off for the men who risked their lives to bring little Kathy Fiscus from the depths of an abandoned well.

More than 4200 letters have been received and nearly $18,000 has been contributed, rescue fund chairman Clark Bell estimated.

In addition, many jobs have been offered to those rescue workers who were unemployed. Sympathetic persons even found a house for one man about to be evicted.

Sect Plans Evangelistic Boat Cruise

ANDERSON'S LANDING, ALA. — (AP) — A sternwheeler which grew old in river commerce is being converted here into a floating "revival tent."

The carpenters are members of a tiny religious sect who call themselves "the People of the Living God," and address one another as "Joe."

When the 38-year old river boat has been reconditioned, they plan to man it for an evangelistic cruise up the Mississippi and her tributaries.

The sect was organized in California. Its members avoid formality in their worship. They observe the sabbath on Saturday. They own a 10-acre tract and buildings at Beersheeba, Tenn.

The group was led to Alabama by Harry R. Miller after the sternwheeler was acquired.

It was Miller who conceived the idea of a floating temple while he was conducting traveling tent services. He found the boat he wanted in a Mobile shipyard.

"The People of the Living God" are practical folk. After they bought the packet for about $3,500 they operated it for six months until the debt was paid.

Then they brought the Jeanne Barrett up sleepy Bayou Sara to Anderson's Landing and went to work with their own hands and tools. Men, women and children labor shoulder to shoulder on the project.

It is a big project for 32 people, of whom only nine are men. They must replace the heavy steam engines with diesels. They are rearranging the decks to provide an auditorium seating 150 people, a kitchen, offices and living space.

The outward appearance of the Jeanne Barrettt will be little changed from its launching at Paducah, Ky., in 1911. Its two tall stacks are being left to serve as ventilators for the auditorium.

Miller, a former building contractor, directs the operation. When he runs short of funds to buy needed equipment, members of the sect take outside jobs to raise money. He figures they are halfway through.

"We'll stop at any town where we can get a hearing," he says in planning for the future voyages. "We want people to study the Bible more and more."

Old-Time Firemen Still Yearn for Dobbin

Say Horses Put Life In Department

Recall Events Of Former Times

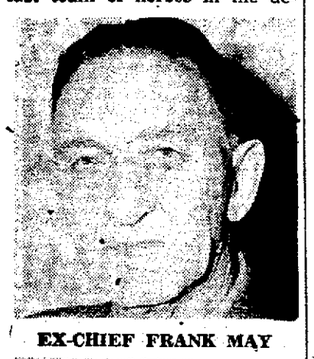
By MARGUERITE MILLER

It's been 30 years since the bong of a fire bell brought a whinny in Mansfield.

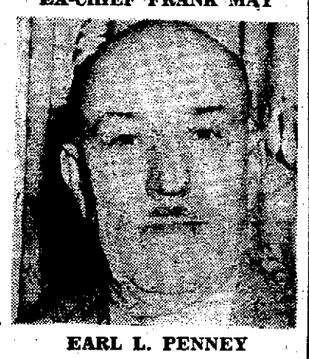
But the 'boys' who drove those snorting Dobbins don't forget. Some of them nostalgically yearn for the color of the old days.

"When they took the horses out of the fire department they took the life all out," ex-chief Frank May stated with an emphatic bang of the fist.

Earl L. Penney, who drove the last team of horses in the department in 1919, wishes he "could live those years over again."



EX-CHIEF FRANK MAY



EARL L. PENNEY

THOMAS C. GREGG

Tom Gregg of No. 3 station only man left in the department from the horse-drawn era, remembers how he "just talked to old Teddy and Dick when we started out."

May, probably most softhearted of the trio on the horse-drawn subject, remembers how the people would gather in front of central station (now the J. C. Penney store) to watch the noon drills with the horses.

"Sometimes there'd be a hundred people out front watching that drill," he said with a sort of far-away tone in his voice. "Every day, at 11 o'clock the bell would ring on the top of the station. That was the regular signal for the horses to run out of their stalls and stand under their harnesses.

"While the horses were out of the stalls, we'd put the feed in their boxes and then sound the out-tap on the bell. When they'd hear that out-tap they'd whirl around and run back to get their feed."

The out-tap, May explained, was the fire-out signal sounded after every fire run in the city.

HORSES LIKED FIRES

"And did they like fires!" May continued. "As soon as that bell sounded they were ready to go. It didn't take long either. They'd run under their harness which was suspended from the ceiling, we'd drop their harness, fasten their collars, and we were ready to go.

"We'd get out as quick, and sometimes quicker, with horses as we'd get out with the motorized equipment."

May has a vivid recollection of the day when Long's 10-cent barn burned and he had to drive his team through an alley of fire.

"There was just an alley between the barn and the other building and I had to get on the other side. Flames were shooting out on both sides of the alley. So I just gave the horses a crack and they plunged right in.

"When we came out of that alley, the horses had singed manes and the skin on my forehead just peeled off when I took off my hat."

May was appointed a city fireman on May 1, 1913 after working eight-months vacation periods in the two previous years. Starting out at central station, he was then shifted to No. 4, appointed lieutenant at No. 3 and then captain at No. 2. In 1929 he took over as chief and retired in 1935 after 26½ years in the service.

"A fireman made $65 a month when I went in the department and I think they saved more money than the boys are doing now on $250."

May resides at 178 Sturges avenue.

RECALLS RESCUE

Tom Gregg laughs about the time he had to rescue a retired fire horse from North Park lake when the 11 a.m. drill bell sounded.

"That was back in 1910. I was working for the park department then and we had old "Coxey" hooked up to a two-wheeled grass and hay cart.

"I knew how those old fire horses were and I told the fellow with me to watch Coxey around 11 o'clock. But I guess he didn't pay any attention.

"When that bell sounded you should have seen Coxey. He took off like a steam engine down around the lake and turned at the boat house. The next thing we saw was Coxey's nose sticking up out of the water. I waded in and unsnapped the harness and led him out. I think Coxey was as surprised as we were."

Gregg, who interrupted his fire department service with a year and a half in the water works in 1920 and '21, is on his "last stretch" of 27 years service.

He had a definite routine for his high-spirited team at No. 4. "That was old Teddy and Dick," he said with a smile. "They pulled the hose and chemical truck.

"They were pretty temperamental, so I'd just talk to them when we started out. They knew they were going to a fire and they were just as anxious as I was. But you couldn't ring that bell on the wagon until they got their second breath. Then they were all set for it.

"I saw a horse drop dead from excitement once when they rang the bell as the wagon started out."

Horses were a lot more work than motorized equipment but they "were nice," Gregg continued. He recalls how a fire always brought dozens of volunteers to the scene to hold the horses so they wouldn't run away. Anyone holding the horses was paid 40 cents an hour by the city at the time.

Gregg who's been at No. 3 for the past six years, lives at 395 Henry street.

When Earl Penney, 472 North Mulberry street, entered the department on March 1, 1919, his assignment was the last two horses on the hook and ladder at central.

"My job was to feed and curry them and that feeding time was at five, sharp in the morning!

"Those horses never missed it within three minutes. If you within three minutes. If your didn't have their feed for them they'd almost kick their stalls down to wake you up."

Penney admits he "was scared to death" all the time he was grooming the horses "because I didn't know much about them. I had one named Ginger who liked to take a bite out of me every time I got near him, but he was a good horse at a fire."

More vividly than the horses, Penney recalls the 'friendly' rodents that accompanied that era.

"Those rats were as big as cats and they certainly feasted on that grain we had around the station for feed. We'd actually have to chase them off our beds when they got too friendly."

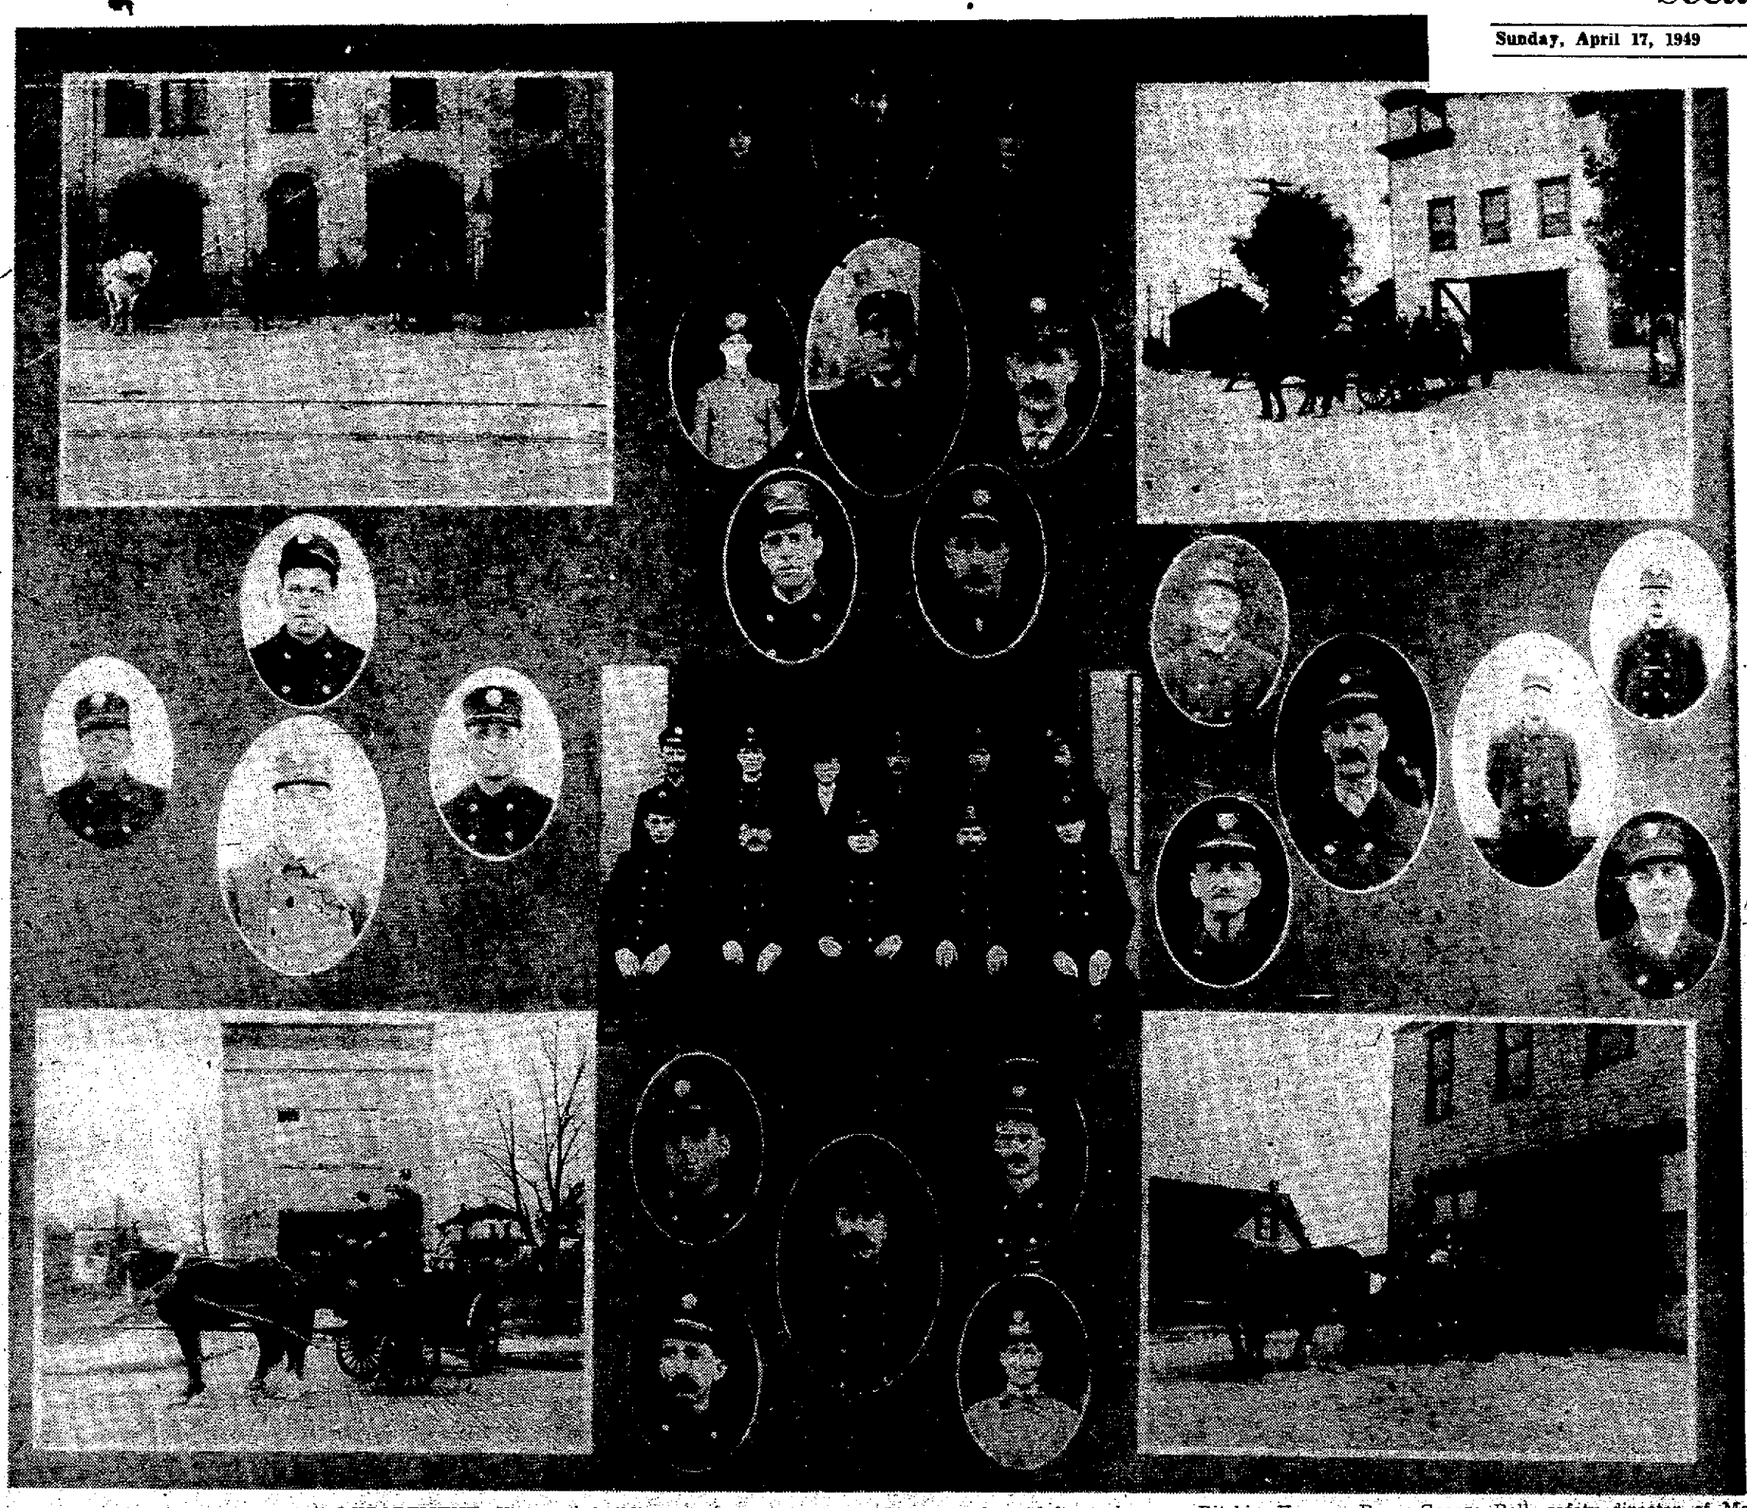
But withal, Penney would probably be the department's first volunteer back into service, if his health would permit.

"I'd like to live those six years in central all over again. We used to have a lot of fun in those days. Firemen don't have any fun anymore; no one comes to visit them.

"Why every Saturday night the groceries around the station would donate all the left-over vegetables for soup and the bakeries would give us bread and rolls.

"We'd make up a big kettle of vegetable soup and anybody who dropped in got a big bowl and could stay for the card games.

"Yessir, those were the days!"



'FAMILY' ALBUM OF CITY'S FIRE DEPARTMENT—Vintage of the horse-drawn days, this album picture, which hangs in Central fire station in the City building, is the pride and joy of the 'boys' who remember the department way back when. Central station, then located at the present J. C. Penney company site, is shown at the top left corner. No. 2 station is shown at top right; No. 3 at bottom right and No. 4 station at bottom left. The latter three stations are still located at the same places they were when the pictures were taken, but none of the original buildings are standing. In the picture grouping at left are shown, clockwise from top, William Gutekunst, Calvin Seeburger, who later became chief, Charles Everly, and Walter McFern. Chief George Knofflock is shown in center of the top group. Others, reading clockwise starting at top are, George Adams, who also served as city electrician, William Remy, who also became chief; George Knofflock, son of the chief, Louis Mathias, his son, Harry Mathias, John Anderson and Harmon Baer. Busy Week Planned at City's YMCA

Vacationing Pupils Find Plenty to Do

"There will be something going on at the YMCA every minute this week for boys of all ages," John Fike, 'Y' physical director, said yesterday.

The accelerated 'Y' program for this week was designed to give the boys of Mansfield something to do during their Easter vacation, Fike said.

The week's program includes swimming and gym classes, checker and ping-pong tournaments, craft shop periods, hikes, a trip through a Mansfield industrial plant, an Easter egg hunt, and an address by a foreign international diplomat.

Nilkanth Chavre, Indian delegate to the United Nations Economic, Scientific and Cultural Organization, will speak to the Blue-Tri and Hi-Y clubs at the YWCA Monday evening.

Chavre, a frequent speaker in Mansfield in the past few months, has addressed adult 'Y' groups recently, but this is the first time the younger boys and girls have had the chance to hear this statesman from India.

INCLUDES ALL AGES

Boys in all age groups, from the youngest "Friendly Indians" to the oldsters, have been included in the gala week of sports and recreation.

Fike pointed out, though, that all adult classes will meet during the week and none of them has been cut to provide this enlarged list of activities for the youngsters.

Starting tomorrow, the week's program begins with the trip to Washington, D. C., by the boys in the YMCA's Hi-Y club at Senior high school. This group is leaving from the 'Y' at 4 a. m. tomorrow for the nation's capital.

The schedule for tomorrow follows:

Craft shop open from 9 a. m. to noon and from 1:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. (Ralph Chapman, director of the shop said the shop would also be open in the evenings throughout the week if there is sufficient interest.) Friendly Indian ping-pong tournament at 9:30 a. m.; Pioneers checker tournament at 9:30 a. m.; Comrades checker tournament at 11 a. m.; men's noon volleyball class from noon to 2 p. m.; Friendly Indian "Down the Mississippi Swim" at 2 p. m.; Triangle gym class at 4 p. m.; Triangle swim class at 4:45 p. m.

Men's evening volleyball class at 5:15 p. m.; young men's class at 6:30 p. m.; boxing class from 6:30 to 8 p. m.; Nilkanth Chavre to address the combined Blue-Tri and Hi-Y clubs at the YWCA at 7 p. m.; senior boys' class at 7:30 p. m.; Hi-Fun club spring dance from 8:30 to 11 p. m.

Reveals Hog Pen Slaying

WALTERBORO, S. C. —(AP)— Wyman Hiott, 60, accused of murder in the death of his 80-year-old sister, Mrs. Carrie Hiott Carter, told officials Saturday he had first given her poison and then buried her, possibly still alive, under a hog pen.

Solicitor Randolph Murdaugh said that he would issue an indictment again Hiott at the next term of criminal court charging death "by starvation, poisoning and burying alive."

Hiott, who has been in jail since April 8, made an oral statement about 5 p. m. Saturday to Murdaugh and Colleton County Sheriff G. Haskell Thompson. The officials quoted him as saying:

"On Tuesday afternoon, April 5, at about 5 p. m. I gave my sister, Mrs. Carter, some strychnine, as much as could be placed on the end of a knife in a cup of coffee. My reason for doing this was because she had messed up her bed so many times.

"The next time I saw her early Wednesday morning, April 6, when I took her some breakfast. She did not eat any, but was still alive at that time.

"Then I went out to the stable and dug the grave. I then went back in the house to her bedroom, picked her up and placed her in the grave, covering her with blankets, then paper, then dirt. At that time, she was breathing a little."

Sheriff Thompson said that Hiott was asked several times to describe Mrs. Carter's condition at the time of the burial.

Each time, the sheriff said, Hiott said her eyes were shut.

Sears Warehouse Fire Kills Woman

MOBILE, Ala. —(AP)— An unexplained fire killed a woman employe and caused an estimated $500,000 damage to a big Sears Roebuck and company warehouse yesterday.

The body of Mrs. Miles A. Smith was found by Assistant Fire Chief Leon Pose after the blaze died down.

Fire damage was placed at "roughly $500,000" by Julian Deovies, Sears Roebuck manager here. First estimates put it at a million dollars.

Temple Planning Passover Rites

The concluding days of the Passover, traditional celebration of those of Jewish faith, will be observed here at the B'Nai Jacob Temple, 50 Sturges avenue, next Wednesday and Thursday.

Services will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p. m. and on Thursday there will be memorial services both at 8 a. m. and 10 a. m. Rabbi Moshe Goldblum will preside at these services, which have been marked by the Seder or Passover feast at the Temple and quiet observances in the homes of the congregation.

OK Passed On New Conservation 'Home'

Fly Kites Thursday

The second half of the YMCA and Mansfield Recreation department's Kite Carnival will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. at the Liberty Park baseball diamond.

The "windjammer festival" was postponed earlier in the month because of a lack of wind.

Judges Stanley Kamen of the recreation department, John [illegible] per, chief judge, and a mathematics teacher at Senior High school, issued a joint-statement saying that all children who did not have their kites built in time to enter the first contest would still be eligible to enter the second part, Thursday.

Prizes will be awarded for kites that fly the highest, the one that is the most unique, and a prize to the boy's kite that has a piece of paper blown to it first by the wind. The latter contest is known as "messenger race."

Application blanks for the contest are available at the "Y" and the recreation department. Boys and girls 16 or less may enter.

Comedy Receipts Go To 'Old Kenyon' Fund

By MARGUERITE MILLER

All of you who were stunned by the tragic Kenyon college fire which took the lives of nine college students on Feb. 27 can now do something about it.

A three-act musical comedy, written by two members of the college faculty, will be presented to the public April 29 and 30. All proceeds from the show will go into the restoration fund for Old Kenyon.

Entitled, "This Will Do," the cast of the show includes college professors, their wives, college students, their children and even Gambier residents. Authors are the college chaplain, Rev. Thomas Barrett, and a Bexley professor, Clement Welsh.

Title chosen for the show, now in rehearsal, is based on the famous quotation, spoken by Bishop Philander Chase, founder of the college, when he chose the site for Kenyon.

In case you can't make it either night, the players are giving a matinee on April 30.

Space ran out on us last week in our sketch of Mansfield's Harry Altner, or we would have mentioned that Harry's brother John Prather also is theatrically minded. The "kid brother" deserves no small share of credit for his success in the city's Madison theater. Four years ago, when 16, he started at the Madison as an usher. In a year he moved up to doorman and then on up to assistant manager. He's now second in command, holding the position of house manager at 20.

PRATHER

There's lot of mutual admiration between the half-brothers. John is proud of Harry who's made a name for himself as a Broadway technical director. Harry thinks his kid brother, who's the man out front, is "doing all right for himself."

Both are the sons of Mrs. John Prather, 371 North Mulberry street.

Today's comedy is a tragedy, thinks author Donald M. Berwick whose article, "The Tragedy of Comedy" appears in the May Esquire drama section.

Berwick laments that he's been unable to find a good, old-fashioned belly laugh on Broadway this year.

"We've got plenty of great comedians; what we seem to lack is a storehouse of bright talent to write for them", he maintains.

"I have a suggestion that will probably tag me as a lowbrow," he continued. "Lets petition Al Capp to write us a play. Capp's comic strip comes closer to being uproariously funny than anything else I've reador seen in a long time."

Maybe that's what the world needs—more Shmoos.

Happenings in Hollywood

Happy Marriage Rated as Success Story

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Sounds odd, coming from Hollywood, of all places, but Barbara Stanwyck sees a direct connection between happy marriage and success on the screen.

"Look at me," invited Miss Stanwyck, who married Robert Taylor ten years ago. "I've had four nominations for the academy award since I met Bob. I made a lot of movies before that, without a nibble from the academy."

Claude Rains agrees. "I appeared in a great many plays but I achieved little of what I call success before I met my wife 15 years ago," he said. "A happy marriage gives an actor a certain poise he wouldn't have otherwise. And I've enjoyed a great deal of wisdom from my wife."

Miss Stanwyck, starring in "File on Thelma Jordon", cites such teams as Frederic March and Florence Eldredge, Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne.

Most of these are better known on stage and radio, but Barbara comes right back with Ronald Colman and Paul Muni. Colman has been a star longer than any other film actor, but he never won an Oscar before his blissful merger with Benita Hume. Muni candidly credits his wife's criticism and cooperation. Pat O'Brien, James Cagney and many others qualify too.

"And how about Sir Laurence Olivier?" Miss Stanwyck challenged. "His greatest success came after he married Vivien Leigh—'Henry V' and now an Oscar for 'Hamlet,' to say nothing of his title."

Rains, who recently completed a role in "Rope of Sand," offers Betty Grable as an example. Betty has been in movies for years, as a singer and dancer. Her fabulous underpinning inspired Writer-Director Preston Sturges' remark: "A girl with legs like that doesn't have to act." But, as Rains points out, only after she married Harry James and acquired a family did Betty achieve real fame and a consistent annual rating among the screen's top boxoffice attractions.

The case for connubial bliss sounds pretty good. But then there's Garbo. She hasn't even tried matrimony. Hollywood likes to think Garbo is passe. Who'd go to see her on the screen now?

Why, practically everybody, chances are.

Titles Sound Like Real Evangelism

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — This is going to look fine on theater marquees, in case of double billing: Republic has just finished "Hellfire" and is now filming "Brimstone."

Moreover, Marie Windsor, leading lady of "Hellfire," has been dating Rod Cameron, working in "Brimstone."

Demands Share Of Reissue Profits

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — John Wayne doesn't intend to get caught again with his reissues showing. Within the past three months, three studios have sent out eight old John Wayne pictures to cash in on his current box-office potentialities. There have been even John Wayne double bills, like "The Long Voyage Home" and "Stagecoach."

Everybody, complains Wayne, has been making money with these re-issues except Wayne. Thus, when he recently signed a new contract at Warner Bros., calling for one picture a year for seven years, he stipulated that the re-release of any of these will net him a percentage.

This may set a precedent. Stars long have been wailing about the financial beating they take on reissues. Writers, too.

Rudy Vallee Will Take Band Tour

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Rudy Vallee is going on tour again as bandleader and singer, for the first time since 1938. Rudy has had a lot of film roles lately, but when he finishes "Father was a Fullback" at 20th Century-Fox he says he will assemble a band and a troupe of entertainers for a circuit of the south next autumn.

This will be his first tour in southern states since 1933. During the war he entertained troops and directed a coast guard band.

★

Filth Faking Takes Some Ingenuity

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — The fine art of faking as practiced in Hollywood:

Certain scenes of "The Window" were filmed during wintry November in New York. Juvenile Actor Bobby Driscoll, wearing summer clothing, found it easy to simulate a lad shaking with fright.

But then the company moved back to balmy California. Director Ted Tetzlaff had to duplicate Bobby's teeth-chattering terror, on a heated sound stage. He did it by parking Bobby for brief periods in the RKO studio cafe's walk-in refrigerator.

However, even in California, the vapor of exhaled breath can be seen outside on a "cold" day. Bobby is supposed to be scared, not frozen, and so in interior scenes Bobby had to hold his breath. This worked perfectly, Bobby said, since holding his breath also made him shake.
